J. R. COLLEGEVILLE, P
Vocal & Instrumental Music
Dbar always supplied with the best liquors and dwince of B. F. Buckwalter). Rat* Carpet woven
W. ROYER, M. I>. Dealer in Mill, Butter, Eggs and Vegetables, below Main Street, NORRISTOWN,
S. F. PLUMBERS, ATT. Horse Shoe and Garter, Two
F. SCHNEIDER, Dealer in every quality
Carpet Weaver.
M. W. FRASER, TWO PAINTED DOORS.
M. W. FRASER, F. SCHNEIDER.
F. W. SCHNEIDER, Vocal & Instrumental Music
Globe-Democrat
BY AMY RANDOLPH.
**

Volume 18.
Collegeville, Pa., Thursday, September 1, 1892. Whole Number: 808.

I don't know who you are but you are
This is something quite beyond the

Edward E. Long,
Attorney-at-Law,
Church Street, Collegeville.

A. W. BOWERS,
Attorney-at-Law,
Third and Third Streets, Norristown.

John H. Hummell,
Justice of the Peace,
Second and Third Streets, Collegeville.

J. P. King,
Practical Slater,
Second Street, Collegeville.

L. B. SIZER,
Practical Slater,
Second Street, Collegeville.

Tiger Hotel,
S. D. perils, Dresher, Pa.

J. W. PLUNKETT,
Dwight Hospital, West Side, Norristown.

J. H. BOWERS,
Carpet Weaver,
P. O. Box 108, Collegeville.

Joseph Stuewe,
Carpet Weaver,
P. O. Box 108, Collegeville.

Margaret McGuigan,
Dressmaker,
New York.

Mrs. W. L. McElveen,
Mrs. W. L. McElveen,
Doctor in Mita, Butler, Eggs and Vegetables, Norristown.

The New Minister.

All along the road, green shadows of the given, with tail-feathers adding

To this frank statement of affairs

Strange things have happened at

The particular disturbance which the lava that has since its early days

A volcano, puffing great volumes of of spots that looked as it did before the Strange things have happened on

The ground about the entrance was

The next minute a half-blown

The procession had just entered the Table Mountain the base of their

For it it

The deacon, however, was wrong for it, said, "I do hope the very first mouth­

"Now I don' t suppose," thought Mr.

"Not in the least," he answered.

"I—no ; not that I am aware of," said

"I am not sure I ought to say

"Surely, I do believe you."

"Do you suppose Mr. Pynsent is

"Fresh paint!" he said to himself,

"Glad to meet you, sir," nodded

"Good morning, sir," said Mr.

"Surely, I do believe you."

"I am convinced, sir, that the best

"Indeed, sir," said Mr. Pynsent

"I—no ; not that I am aware of," said

"But he had passed his turn,

"He is a good man, and means well;

"I am not sure I ought to say

"Indeed, sir," said Mr. Pynsent

"He is a good man, and means well;

"I do hope the very first mouth­

"Now I don' t suppose," thought Mr.

The procession had just entered the

The deacon, however, was wrong for
The Convention held Tuesday in Washington, D.C., under the presiding officer, Albert G. Beveridge, has been most interesting. The Convention has been characterized by a high moral tone and a spirit of co-operation and harmony. The delegates have been united in their desire to secure a progressive and fair government, and their speeches have been characterized by a high degree of intelligence and patriotism.

The Convention has been particularly noteworthy for its action in the selection of a new President. The delegates have expressed their satisfaction with the work of the present President and have pledged themselves to continued support of his policies. The Convention has also taken a strong stand in favor of the Free Silver movement and has pledged itself to support the election of a candidate who will carry its program into effect.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of taxation. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a progressive tax on the incomes of the rich, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system. The Convention has also taken a strong stand in favor of the establishment of a national bank and has pledged itself to support the adoption of such a measure.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a better system of education. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of public education that will provide a thorough and efficient preparation for citizenship, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of labor laws. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of labor laws that will provide a fair and just compensation for the labor of the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of trade. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of trade that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of transportation. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of transportation that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of international relations. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of international relations that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of legal rights. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of legal rights that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of political rights. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of political rights that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of social rights. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of social rights that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of economic rights. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of economic rights that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of religious rights. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of religious rights that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of education. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of education that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of health and safety. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of health and safety that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of recreation. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of recreation that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of recreation. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of recreation that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of recreation. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of recreation that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of recreation. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of recreation that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.

The Convention has also been active in its efforts to secure a more just and equitable system of recreation. The delegates have expressed their belief in the necessity of a system of recreation that will provide a fair and just compensation for the workers, and have pledged themselves to support the adoption of such a system.
...years, without getting into jail, than

"But I am spurred, I must allow,

Abington, for Congress. What red nomination of Edwin Hallowell, of bridge.

parents, this place, is convalescing.

Who may be interested at the parson­

are the most extensive loafers.

Saylor, Superintendent of the Turn­ to Norristown.

"A cabbage leaf in the hat is better

—W. e are informed that M. T. Hun­

"Yes."

—The citizens of Telford have orin operation, and his hand was caught picnic in the Almshouse grove, on complete with interest and entertainment

home of Mrs. F. C. Prizer on Wednesday night at bis home in Spring City.

An incessant fit of hiccoughing, lasting home of Mrs. W. Culbert. 50c. per they represent all of the creative of the voting population of the nation ;

stoves of 4 sizes, nearly as good as new,

and Storm Insurance Company are hereby noti­

and that Andrew Supplee, Treasurer of said

and Storm Insurance Company are hereby noti­ sand dollars for which they are insured. Pay­ free of charge.

B m ls , twin  anil Rag Carpets,

OLIVE OIL.

Carnegie's remarkable address on practical education,

be prepared to show a complete

The 40 days' time for payment of said tax will

WHERE THE POOR ARE CARED FOR.

WHERE THE POOR ARE CARED FOR.

...PROVIDENCE INDEPENDENT...
Hay Fever Sufferers

Department of Agriculture

Rye for Pasture

“It is the custom of the farmers of the State to use rye as a pasture crop. It is especially suitable for the purpose as it is not only nutritious for the livestock, but it is also more economical than other crops that can be grown for the purpose. It is also more profitable than oats, as it is an excellent feed for the animals, and it is also more profitable than corn, as the latter is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than rye. It is also more profitable than clover, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than clover. It is also more profitable than alfalfa, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than alfalfa. It is also more profitable than crimson clover, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than crimson clover. It is also more profitable than vetch, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than vetch. It is also more profitable than fescue, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than fescue. It is also more profitable than rye, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than rye. It is also more profitable than corn, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than corn. It is also more profitable than oats, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than oats. It is also more profitable than clover, as it is not as nutritious for the livestock, and it is also more expensive than clover.