Alumni Take Part In Vesper Service

Vesper services last night were highlighted by the presence of Richard J. C. Searle '46 and John C. W. Hunsaker '46, who are now studying at Princeton University. James H. Wilson '45, who spoke on "Humility in a Christian Church," was one of the hearers that 'look for success in church life' and the "truth of the Carpenter of Nazareth," and was thrilled with the odds that faced John. John pictured not a millitant Christ, but a gentle Christ who loved the lambs upon the throne.

Hunsaker introduced the services and Richard Hart '44, read the lesson of the evening. Mrs. Erle Lingerfelt '41, sang for Arthur Sullivan's "Lost Chord" accompanied by Margaret Oelschlager '46 on the harpsichord. George MacNeil '45, presided on the organ during the service.

GERMAN ARMIES will be in a state of collapse. The question is what is to be done with them. One should not let them be demoralized by the American army, which will probably be the strongest army in Europe. It is better to leave them to the French army, which is more capable of handling them, than to leave them to the American army, which is less capable.

Germany is not to be turned completely into a nation of small peasant farmers. After this war there will be a great deal of new wealth created, and this wealth will be distributed among the people. The French labor movement will be more powerful, and the German labor movement will be weaker.

The plans for after the war now involve two main elements: the establishment of a new world order and the establishment of a new economic order. The new world order will be based on a system of international law, which will be enforced by an international court. The new economic order will be based on a system of international trade, which will be regulated by an international trade agency.

One point of view is that Germany must be made so weak that she can never again be a threat to the peace of Europe. This view is advocated by leaders in both America and Britain. The plan consists of controlling internationally and others would be given freedom to control what they wish. The plan should be taken away from Germany, they are either of industrial or strategic importance.

U.S. Hockey Teams Stop Swarthmore Here, 4-1, With Excellent Defense Playing

The U.S. hockey teams easily defeated the Swarthmore team here, 4-1, with excellent defense playing and a fast-paced attack. The game was played on the ice at the Swarthmore rink and was a fierce battle from start to finish. The U.S. team was led by their veterans, and they proved to be too much for Swarthmore to handle. The game started off with an intense back-and-forth battle, with both teams creating scoring opportunities. However, the U.S. team was able to score on a well-executed play, opening the scoring in the first period. Swarthmore tried to push back, but their efforts were met with strong defense from the U.S. team. The game continued in the second period with both teams playing a physical game. The U.S. team was able to maintain their lead, and they continued to dominate the game. In the third period, the U.S. team continued to apply pressure, and they were able to score two more goals to secure the win. The final score was 4-1 in favor of the U.S. team. The game was a great display of skill and teamwork, and the U.S. team proved to be the superior team on the ice.
Prom Etiquette Is Downfall of Many

Editor's Note: Past experience at dances has proved the necessity for this type of article. We offer it here for the convenience of bewildered students.

Every formal dance finds anxious students dutifully awaiting their turn in the reception line and frantically trying to remember the proper way to go through the ordeal. In order that student's pleasure will not be lessened by such a trial at the senior ball, a few pointers will be presented here.

First of all it should be considered a must for every couple to turn in the reception line which after all only consists of members of the faculty and their wives, and the president and his wife. A student couple usually heads the receiving line making it easier for their suffering fellow students.

The man introduces the girl and himself to the person at the head of the line. This person gives the couple received to the person right repeating the names of the couple. The less a student guest tries to remark, the better.

NURSE GIVES TALK

Public hospital in Dixon, Illinois. Before her appointment as director of nurses at Allegheny Valley hospital, she occupied a similar position at Springfield Memorial hospital at Springfield, Illinois.

Openings now and after the war, in the field of nursing education and administration, in public health nursing, psychiatric nursing and in other specialties, offer unprecedented opportunities for young women with advanced preparation, she believes. An evidence that college women are responding to the challenge, she points to the fact that they form twice as large a percentage of new student nurses today as ten years ago.

Miss Oglevee, who met in New York recently with leaders in the educational and nursing professions, held individual conferences with students and had facts about the 150 or more schools of nursing connected with colleges and universities, offering a degree, as well as the entire list of 1300 state-supported schools of nursing.

The speaker also gave the latest information on the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps, which offers an expense-free professional education in more than 100 of these schools, including tuition, maintenance, distinctive uniforms and a monthly stipend to all qualified women, who pledge themselves to remain in essential military or civilian nursing for the duration of the war.
