GRAND DISPLAY

Furniture, Carpets, Bedding, etc.

Boston, Dec. 19, 1893.

AN APPALLING OF LIFE

Not over six months since the world witnessed the most extraordinary display of human strength and endurance in the world, the 26th and 27th edition of the world's fair, a scene of unparalleled display and excitement, was held in the city of Chicago. The Exhibition was divided into four main sections, each devoted to a different branch of science and art: the Mechanic, the Silver, the Commercial, and the Agricultural. The first section was devoted to the Mechanic, and was the largest and most elaborate of all. It occupied a space of 40 acres, and was covered with a roof of steel. The exhibit consisted of the most recent inventions, and the most wonderful machines, and was visited by a great number of people. The second section was devoted to the Silver, and was smaller than the first, but equally elaborate. It was covered with a roof of glass, and contained a great variety of silver ware. The third section was devoted to the Commercial, and was the smallest of all. It was covered with a roof of canvas, and contained a variety of commercial exhibits. The last section was devoted to the Agricultural, and was the largest of all. It was covered with a roof of straw, and contained a great variety of agricultural exhibits.
