At the Masquerade.

It was the costume ball. It filled the room. Everyone was dressed up. And everyone was having a ball. The music was playing, the lights were glowing, and the excitement was palpable.

Aggie McGregor,

Tough on Mrs. Binks.

There is a telephone in their parlor, and it is used principally by Mrs. Binks and her friends. Mrs. Binks is a very talkative woman, and it is said that she never stops talking. The other day, she was in the midst of a conversation when the telephone rang. She answered it, and the caller said, "Mrs. Binks, this is the police. There is a fire in your house. Please come down at once." Mrs. Binks hurriedly dressed and ran to the station. When she arrived, the fire was already under control. "Why did you call the police, Mrs. Binks?" asked the officer. "I thought it was a fire," she replied. "But there was no fire," said the officer. "Oh, I'm sorry," said Mrs. Binks. "I thought it was a fire."
The fighting efforts of none of the big liners in Europe or America are not lacking at the present time, but a work or a visit to the Hawaiian Islands. The country has been secured, the government has been re-established, and the people have taken up their homes. The same is true of the great new United States Gunboat, which is now in command of the Hawaiian Islands. It is being called the "great dailies," which is a misnomer. It is a large, well-armed vessel, and the crews are well drilled.

The news from the Hawaiian Islands is most encouraging. The people of Hawaii are now in a position to take care of themselves. The American Government has given them a large amount of money, and they have taken care of it. The people of Hawaii are now able to carry out any obligation made by the American Government.
