The Friday, Dec. 29, 1888.

The Eightieth session of Congress opened at Washington, Monday. Large numbers of members are already in the city and many more are expected in the next few days. The House of Representatives will reassemble on Monday afternoon, and the Senate will meet on Tuesday.

The condition of the weather is another point of interest. The warm days of December have continued and the snow is melting. The sun is shining bright and the temperature is warm. The weather is very pleasant and comfortable.

The condition of the country is another point of interest. The War Department is said to have received a report from the chairman of the committee on military affairs that the situation is very serious and that the country is not prepared for war. The committee is said to have recommended the immediate preparation for war.

The condition of the people is another point of interest. The people are said to be in a state of great anxiety and to be anxious for the outcome of the election. The people are said to be in a state of great expectation and to be looking forward to the inauguration of the new president.

The condition of the press is another point of interest. The press is said to be in a state of great excitement and to be publishing articles of a political nature. The press is said to be in a state of great activity and to be publishing articles of a political nature.

The Farmer's Line.

You are keeping gourmet wear on, but you may need a warmer or more informal line. Blouse, Squirrel, Casa, Cotton, Vichy Print, and I have not seen any good suits and coats, but I notice the following:

- Winter coat with a felt hat, lined with chamois, and a woolen collar.
- A cashmere muffler with a silk pocket.
- A woolen scarf with a cashmere edge.
- A woolen beret with a felt band.

These pieces are available in most cities, and they will keep you warm and comfortable in the cold weather.

The Farm as a Training School.

It is true that many farmers have been trained in the army, but there are few who have been trained in agriculture. The army provides a good training for discipline, organization, and leadership, but it does not provide the knowledge and skills necessary for successful farming.

In the army, the emphasis is on teamwork and cooperation, whereas in agriculture, the emphasis is on individual initiative and responsibility. A farmer needs to know how to manage his land, how to care for his livestock, and how to market his products. These skills are not taught in the army.

In conclusion, while the army provides a good training for discipline and organization, it does not provide the knowledge and skills necessary for successful farming. Farmers need to be trained in agriculture, not in the army.
