Wednesday, February 1, 1894.

Your work, Senator, you feel and believe, if you cannot believe that there are many in the State who look to the Republican party for the solution of many of our problems.

The speech of Senator Bryan of Ohio on the question of the admission of Utah to the Union is one which I am sure will be read with interest by many who have heretofore taken an active part in the political discussions of the State.

The United States has been enabled to train a large body of soldiers, who have been well disciplined in every respect, and who are now ready to take the field with the same spirit and energy with which they have previously been instructed.

In conclusion, I would urge upon the Senate the importance of maintaining our national integrity and independence, and of preserving the peace and prosperity of the Union.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.

Washington, D.C., February 1, 1894.

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, has called attention to the necessity of improving and enlarging our naval forces. It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

The message of the President is fully in accordance with the views of the Senate, and it is hoped that Congress will give it prompt and favorable consideration.

The Senate is in session.
The last two weeks.

Dr. H. C. Chamberlain, of Lower Providence, has removed to the West, where he intends solely to pursue the practice of medicine. Dr. Chamberlain is a very able practitioner, and will doubtless be successful in his new location.

Mr. J. W. Tryon, removed recently from this place to Philadelphia, and is now making a visit to the College of Physicians in that city.

The Queensville Band has been formed, and will meet on every Monday evening, at the office of the editor, for practice.

Mr. J. W. Tryon, the editor of the "Providence Independent," has just returned from a visit to the College of Physicians in Philadelphia. He says he is very well satisfied with the system of medicine which is taught there, and that it is much more extensive than that which is taught in this country.

The meeting of the Lower Providence Board of Education was held at the office of the editor, this morning, and was very well attended.

Mr. J. W. Tryon, the editor of the "Providence Independent," has just returned from a visit to the College of Physicians in Philadelphia. He says he is very well satisfied with the system of medicine which is taught there, and that it is much more extensive than that which is taught in this country.

The meeting of the Lower Providence Board of Education was held at the office of the editor, this morning, and was very well attended.

Mr. J. W. Tryon, the editor of the "Providence Independent," has just returned from a visit to the College of Physicians in Philadelphia. He says he is very well satisfied with the system of medicine which is taught there, and that it is much more extensive than that which is taught in this country.

The meeting of the Lower Providence Board of Education was held at the office of the editor, this morning, and was very well attended.

Mr. J. W. Tryon, the editor of the "Providence Independent," has just returned from a visit to the College of Physicians in Philadelphia. He says he is very well satisfied with the system of medicine which is taught there, and that it is much more extensive than that which is taught in this country.
COUNTRY Paint,—second to none in Accommodation .................... 6.13 p. m.
4.20, p. m.
FOR ALLENTOWN AND POINTS NORTH AND WEST.
11.15, 11.50 a. m., 4.00, 8.00 p. m. Accommodation, 8.00 a. m., 5.45 p. m.
7.55, 11.26, a. m., 3.58, 5.47, 7.22, 8.25, p. m.
A Full Stock of all Other Kinds LUMBER, WOOD, PAPER, RAILROADS.

STEAM  HEATING !
The Design of STEAM in comparison with the OLD method of HEATING is marvelously simple. Indeed, for so much heat can be obtained from the same amount of fuel, by the direct use of steam heating. This very important consideration is that keeps the old and old, smokeless, inefficient heat- ing real, can be confined to a portion of the cellar instead of filling the entire basement. The Steam Heating has come to stay. Do you wish to secure an advance?
If you do, you are heading directly to wards our line of business, and we want your order. We will look in and make our style to suit you, guarantee you satisfaction, and give you full worth of your money. The Roberts Machine Company, Collegeville, Pa.

THE TARIFF QUESTION AGITATES THE COUNTRY.

OUR  TARIFF REDUCTION SALE

THE JONES

LOGGED WISE WREN

With Stock Proof Lock.
Nail, Strong, Durable and Cheap!

Church's Strong Wool Puts, Italy,世界 famous.

BUTCHER

Our Own Killed and Handled.

TAX MANUSCRIPTS

As a reward for the use of the whole work, and the exposure to the public of the knowledge of the subject of agriculture, the Department of Agriculture,

MATURED WINTER GRAIN.

With the crops and the pastures and the herbage of the earth the life of the plant is the same in the Winter as in the Spring. The Winter grains, the rice, the corn, and the oats are just as much alive as the Spring grains. All that is necessary is to plant them, and to give them the care and attention that they require. It is very desirable to give them the care and attention that they require. It is very desirable to give them the care and attention that they require. It is very desirable to give them the care and attention that they require. It is very desirable to give them the care and attention that they require. It is very desirable to give them the care and attention that they require. It is very desirable to give them the care and attention that they require.