A correspondent of the Germantown Review writes us that he recently went to a barn to see a shapely, vigorous tree butchered to death by a poacher.

The cutting and carrying of timber is an unlawful and destructive practice in Pennsylvania, and the question of the legality of this practice has been before the courts for many years. The correspondent states that the tree was cut with an axe, and that the wood was carried away by the poacher.

The correspondent further remarks that the tree was not officially marked, and that the poacher had no right to cut it.

The correspondent concludes by expressing his hope that the authorities will take prompt action to prevent future instances of this kind.

The orphanage of St. Luke's Reformed Church, was the guest of Prof. Calvin Mensch and family. The reception was a great success and was attended by a large number of invitees from various parts of the country.

The program consisted of a recitation, a poem, and a song. The recitation was performed by a young girl, and was entitled "The little red cow." The poem was entitled "The beautiful woman," and was performed by a young man. The song was entitled "The hound and the devil." The recitation was a great success, and was applauded by all present.

solid oak table, length 8 feet, width 4 feet, height 2 feet, in good condition, and well preserved, with a top of mahogany, in good

A little thought and common sense on the part of the public in the matter of the destruction of trees would go far in solving the problem of the preservation of our forests.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The best single grain for horses is oats, next barley, and, lastly, corn.
If good, sound, heavy, and whole, it is world renowned. Horses require no other grain but oats. They eat hay made from green oats, with great avidity; and this grass makes the finest manure, and is good for horse pasturage. Horses will feed and make good shape during the winter on a diet of oats and hay.

STEAM : HEATING!

The supremacy of STEAM in comparison with the OLD FASHIONED KEROSENE or paraffine, is considered, for twice as much heat can be obtained from the same amount of fuel from steamer than old way of stove heating. Then the very important consideration is that all the dust and dirt, incident to burning coal, oil, and gas, and out of the business of steaming about all the rooms in the house. Steam Heating is also the best for parlor rooms, as it gives an hour, and we want our neighbors and the public generally to know there is everything to sell, and want to sell it — no matter what it is.
