REV. TOVEY DOWNS "MIGHT RULES RIGHT"

Last Lenten Speaker Shows The Safety of Sacrifice

"Sometimes the gift is too great for the altar on which it is laid," asserted Reverend G. W. Tovey, the Spring City Methodist church, Tuesday evening in Bomberger chapel. For the last of the three Lenten services sponsored by the combined YMCA-WYMA and Brotherhood of St. Paul. Reverend Tovey, who is known here as Usinius as a former Vesper speaker and the father of Virginia Tovey '46, pointed out that the gift which he was discussing was the Safety of Sacrifice. The real good of sacrifice, he said, was that men could in a very realistic way take their own lives and spend them on behalf of something else.

"Then you sacrifice something for the great desire of the multitude so that the multitude is moved by this to sacrifice something for another great desire," Tovey continued. "It is great paradox. Preservation of ourselves and our ideals is one thing, but the many duties of the individual, the endless problems, the concrete, do not seem to affect the individual, the man as he is, but the sacrifice of the individual's desires and ego for the good of the multitude is the true sacrifice.

The real good of sacrifice, he said, is that men can actually and practically meet the demands of the present at the cost of the ever present future. Tovey continued that the real good of sacrifice is that men are met and that men thus are always being met.

The real good of sacrifice is that men are met and the real good of sacrifice is that men are always being met.

STABILIZING WORLD CURRENCY

It has become quite evident to world economic planners that the postwar international economic system should be unhampered by economic planning of individual countries, there must be some universal stabilization of currency. Toward this end plans have been proposed: that of John Keynes, advisor to the British treasury, and that of Harry Dexter White, monetary advisor to the United States treasury.

The Keynes Plan

In the Keynes plan the relative values of currency would be decided on between the countries involved. Each country participating would contribute a certain amount of its currency. The United States, for example, would contribute 40 billion dollars in gold, 20 billion dollars in French francs, 10 billion dollars in British pounds, and so on. The contributions would be kept in banks until their values are agreed upon by the member countries.

The White Plan

The relative value of currency would be established through preliminary discussions between representatives of the United States and other countries. Each nation would contribute to a central fund, to be made available to destitute countries for a period. The board of directors would be set up, and a central bank or clearing agency would be established to handle the exchange. The credit of the various countries on their trade would be unhampered by economic planning of individual countries.

The need for the plan is evident to world economic planners. I feel that all too often we fail to appreciate the magnitude of the war, and that we might enjoy ourselves, our free time and our effort so that we may become more war conscious; the result, we shall probably find that we are paying for this war in more ways than one.

Students Speak

This week, the College's inquiring reporter asks students around the campus how they feel about having Navy men come to Ursinus.

Some of the replies are:

Fred Carson '45: The Navy is taking over. I'm sure that our college will be changed and the sailors feet at home. As a result, we shall probably find that many of our male students will be putting off this war in more ways than one.

George Krats '43: I think it's a fine idea. I think that the Navy men will be a credit to the college if they can speak well for their school. Also the fact that they are running around here will enable the college to continue as usual with enrollment.

I guess the Navy is a reality now—Great the Navy coming to Ursinus. It's the first time, unless we stick to our 'guns' and they can't get the Navy. Trouble a 'comm' around the mountains.

Peggy Hudson '45: I think it will make us more war conscious; the murray will certainly be raised. Maybe we'll get better grades.

Anne Baird '45: I believe that the coming of the Navy men will weaken our college spirit and the realization of the aeronautics of war. I also believe it will make better for the man shortage.

Betty Power '45: The Navy involving our campus will have no effect on our school life and bad of this same situation in college. I believe Ursinus will become a reality until it comes within striking distance. It will probably make the Navy in Pitman hall, Bomberger, and I am sure that it will be accepted with the same spirit as in all other college towns.

Betty Power '45: It's too bad it couldn't have been done before for we'd have had a circular dance of the service—but you could hardly expect anything. I'm sorry I won't be here to see the Navy men in the picture 'boys in blue'. Ursinus and the U.S.N. should be a winning combination. If Hitler knew about it.

To the Editor: Last Monday evening the combination of the sisterly story in music and pictures

I feel that all too often we fail to appreciate the magnitude of the war. A lot of programs are given for our benefit, but I feel that we must watch a performed finish that we may contribute our lives to the war effort and put to a lot of work into it, using our hands and brains for victory, so that we might enjoy ourselves. I myself prepared for the musical last Monday night will heartily second the many apologies to the music and pictures we appreciate our appreciation and thank you for such a grand service. To Dr. Philip and the choir, congratulations for their work.

Frosh-Juniors May Still Claim Title By Taking Contest

The long-awaited for interclass track meet will be held Tuesday May 4 and will consist of many events. The weather will be the deciding factor in awarding the interclass plaque, for it includes enough points to put the losing Frosh-Juniors ahead of the Soph-Oldies, if they should win enough events.

All students with any track experience at all should sign up with Steve Stevens and come out to practice every day. Those who have never participated in a meet before may sign up in one of the scheduled events, in any detail.

Bayside is Undefeated In College Competition After Four Seasons

by Walter Hunt '46

One of the most unqualified athletes ever to play on this campus is former artilleryman Gilbert 'Bud' Bayne, who has had an indescribable string of victories during his four years at Ursinus.

A senior chemistry major here, Bud first developed his skills at Amherst, N. Y., high school, where he was on the varsity football team. In his first two years at Ursinus he developed into an interclass champ, and that ability was never understated in the intercollegiate competition. Still with the number one man on the 1941 team, Bud came through with four wins in four matches.

Last year, with competition limited, Bud never really was brushed aside contenders for his titles. This year, he is the choosing of the Ursinus team in golf classes for the first time.

Besides being a first-rate golfer, Bud is an all-around athlete, playing football, basketball, tennis, and baseball. As an honor student, he has been president of the Brookwood Club at Ursinus and a member of all prom committees.

GIRLS TO PLAY OFF MATCHES

Girls trying out for doubles positions on the tennis varsity should expect to be selected very soon, according to Coach John Downin, who expects a large squad of good tennis players this year. Anyone who has not already begun to play should see Miss Steele at the tennis courts, for arrangements for dates are made.

Girls’ Varsitys to Open Season With Penn and Temple Teams

Softball Players To Defend Undefeated Record

Meeting their first opponents of the season tomorrow afternoon, the girls’ varsity softball team will travel to Penn to defend their undefeated record of last year.

Although Coach Eleanor Shnell has not posted a definite lineup for the first few matches of this spring, her veterans will probably take to the field at their old places. Doris Harrington, who played at second base before, may play on the national team this year, and other pitchers Miss Shnell may look to include freshman Sally Secor and junior Betty Koop.

Behind the plate, Ursinus will probably have Nancy Landis, while last year’s captain, Millie Bricker, takes over at first base and Marjorie Bright plays at third. The second base slot is still open.

Hard-hitting Jeanne Matthews will stay at short stop, and Betty Kurtin may move from center field to short field. Courtenay Richardson is the likely candidate for the center field position, while Miss Bright, who has never played short, may stay at that position and take over at short field.

Annie Baird, sophomore phys- ed major, may also find a position on the team.

This day, the girls will meet Bryn Mawr on their own field, where they will play their first varsity game of this year, the Main Line contests to follow. Next week or thereabout, the girls will play Swarthmore.
