IN THE BREAKERS.

The ocean, as a whole, is but the sea of churning, boiling, roaring waters, filled with the billowing masses, the endless columns of foam, and the foaming surges of the surf. It is a place of the highest excitement, where the waves are always breaking, and the winds are always blowing. It is a place of danger and uncertainty, where the ships are always in peril, and the sailors are always in fear. It is a place of beauty and grandeur, where the sun sets and rises in splendor, and the stars shine in the night sky.

The ocean is a place of mystery and wonder, where the secrets of the past are hidden in the depths, and the secrets of the future are revealed in the tides. It is a place of mystery and uncertainty, where the outcomes of the battles are uncertain, and the winners are unknown. It is a place of beauty and grandeur, where the sun sets and rises in splendor, and the stars shine in the night sky.

The women of this State proved that they could safely be trusted with the vote, for, as the women suffragists of the country, may reason why it shouldn't adopt such a measure. It is an admission of the nullity of the arguments that the defeat of the women's suffrage laws demonstrates the unfitness of the women to exercise the franchise. The women of this State may be trusted to use the vote as a weapon in the cause of reform.
