Department of Agriculture,

NEW FACTS ABOUT STABLE MANURE.

A considerable part of every animal's food is burned in the body, and the combustion is a very complete and very useful process. The result of the food is an energy, which is used for work and other purposes, and this energy is the same whether the food is burned in the body or not. It is this energy that we use in the following way:

1. It is used to drive machinery, which is used to do work for us.
2. It is used to heat and light our houses.
3. It is used to cook our food.
4. It is used to produce heat and light for our pleasure.
5. It is used to produce hot water for our use.
6. It is used to produce steam for our use.
7. It is used to produce electricity for our use.
8. It is used to produce heat and light for our use.
9. It is used to produce heat and light for our use.
10. It is used to produce heat and light for our use.

We are glad to have this opportunity to point out the great importance of manure in agriculture.
