It is apparent that the situation in which Mr. Lincoln is placed is more serious than has been supposed. It seems to be a mortal conflict between the friends and foes of the Union. The President has now to exercise the most delicate and difficult power, and to call upon the country for a united effort to maintain the Constitution and the Federal Union. The President, said the correspondent of the Philadelphia Independent, has given to the country every encouragement to believe that the Government and the Union are safe. The President has shown contrivance and determination.

The witnesses for the prisoners were sixty-two in number, and thirty-four in favor of the prisoners. The jury deliberated two hours and twenty minutes before reaching a verdict. The prisoners are said to have been in token of their sufferings from recent impressions.

There will be at least four different changes this year in the administration of the government. The President has expressed a desire to see the country united. The men on the coast were divided in opinion as to the possibility of a Jefferson administration being established. The President has said that the country was divided, and that the administration was about to go forward.

There is a strong interest in the country, and the newspapers are giving it much attention. The President has given to the country every encouragement to believe that the Government and the Union are safe. The President has shown contrivance and determination.
