So You're Going to College?

Intelligence as a life value has been subjected to much unintentional criticism of a not too favorable tone. College students have had more than their share in refuting its value.

The attack on intelligence, of course, is nothing new, and no more convincing, for college graduates are agreed in acknowledging the inestimable value of intelligence.

"We'll, you wonder, "who ever said intelligence is a drawback"? True, the percentage statistic says so, but argue that intelligence is without value would be small; however, how often have you heard freshmen say that they fear they are wasting force on the degree and not gainig from their education? You can certainly ask questions of any person in mind? Here clearly the purpose of a college like Ursinus has been manifest.

Ursinus College, we believe, offers more in value to a student undecided on his career than to the speculating one. The real need of Ursinus and other liberal arts graduates is not a highly specialized education, rather it is a foundation of life strong enough to stand the challenges of the new business.

Intelligence, the product and characteristic of that versatility, seems most valuable in that light.

The Cross of Democracy

We may well give thanks that ours has been the good fortune to be born in a democracy. It is right that we should sing loud and long the praises of democracy's blessings—freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of the press.

The only drawback is the necessity of defending our right to make an opinion. However, as recipients of those blessings, we must be willing to bear the extra burden of controversy with those who would have us to enjoy their succulence to the fullest measure. Each favor has its concomitant responsibility; each boon its burden.

"The most striking example of this theory are being forwarded daily as we read the screaming headlines of the newspapers. The opposing castes are the typographical hysteresia as:

- "Hitler Planning World Wide Coup, Democraacy Imminent, Spy Ring Suspected," etc., etc., ad infinitum.

Yes, we have freedom of the press, but we are also the possessors of gross publicity.

In 1917, partially upon a "case of jitters" due to extensive war propaganda in our "free press," we found ourselves three years later made the favorite of all ages,—a farce it would have had not the outcome been so pathetic.

And just what was the essence of that propaganda campaign? "Kaiser Planning to Conquer the World," "Democraacy On Disaster's Brook," "Bloodthirsty Ninjas."

"Very similar to what we read today, isn't it? It's the same old play with a different cast, that's all."

A Cannon of Dilemma

What then, is the answer to this dilemma? What is our responsibility? What burden must we carry?

The answer is surprisingly simple. The only cross we have to bear is the Cross of Common Sense. Our only yoke are those of Science and Sane, Humanization. And even though our task is simple, we falter; we fail to appreciate fully the fruits of this yoke, our thirsts, then our just safeties are not performed.

We have freedom of the press, but to enjoy it thoroughly we must discriminate between what is true and what is false. Of course we cannot mark one report definitely true, and another entirely false. Both are true, or both false.

"Culture, Scope, Sound Reason, and Discrimination."

It was the dearth of these elements that enabled our militarists to lead us on a crusade with flying white banners in 1917, and unless we are willing to apply them now, unless we demand them for ourselves, the yoke of democracy's reciprocal agreement upon ourselves immediately, we may never again cherish the yoke of democracy.

Student Recognition

We as students, not only at Ursinus but in colleges throughout this entire democracy, must take upon ourselves the responsibility and learn to keep a collective level head in the face of daily ballyhoo of propaganda, true or false, which are being advertised as the voice of "Baltimore Sun" after the last year, "The question is not where civilization began, but when will it."
VALE TRANSITION STUDY INDICATES IMPORTANT FACTORS WHICH MAKE FOR STUDENT'S COLLEGE SUCCESS OR FAILURE.

Conditions under which students thrive in college are found. Non-academic activities are the two social important factors that make for success or failure in college.

Some of the interesting conclusions contained in the recently published report of the Vale Transition Study, which has just been released. The study, in which Ursinus, together with twenty other eastern colleges and universities, cooperated, was begun in 1934.

Basic material for the study was provided by 1114 secondary school seniors in 186 schools scattered through New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Of the original number of students, 1041 were followed through the freshman year of college.

The purpose of the study is to find out the factors of the prospective college student that incline him to success or failure in college.

No student should seriously consider college unless his financial obligations have been adequately provided for.

Living on the campus is to be preferred to living at home. However, students who must attend college from their homes would do well to arrange to remain on the campus as much as possible.

3. Resident students should plan not to visit their homes too frequently during the college year.

4. A student's health, scholastic, financial, family and home, religious, moral, and disciplinary, personality, social, living conditions and activity, were factors that students whose de-

5. Students should make every effort to secure family guidance and help with their academic, health, and vocational problems.

'COOKING THE PAST" AS A GRADUATE

Ursinus College Freshmen Rank 24th Among 355 Colleges

Ursinus College Freshmen ranked 24th among 355 colleges and universities in the United States in the psychological examination made by the American Council on Education last September. This information was released during the past week by the American Council on Education, Washington, D. C., in a communication addressed to the Registrar's Office.

Standings of all colleges administering the test are published in the April number of the Educational Record.

In commenting upon the report, Register Shroder said, "While the standing of this year's freshman group was slightly lower than that of last year's entering class, the comparative standing of Ursinus freshmen is still highly commendable. Freshmen entering Ursinus in September, 1937, ranked 13th in a group of 323 colleges on a similar test. Any institution that can attract the highest seven percent of the students going to colleges and universities in the United States can take justifiable pride in its record," Mr. Shroder added.

The most interesting facts revealed by the tables in the published report include the following:

The average median score for freshmen groups in 230 four-year colleges is 19.4. The median score for Ursinus freshmen is 100.6. The average median score for Ursinus in the psychological test is 76.42, and in the psychology, 80.22. This indicates a difference of 23.8 points in the year-four college of the country.

The quality of students attracted to the freshman class is felt to remain as a basis for success or failure in college.

The results are considered as a complete and comprehensive picture of the student who has at hand all his previous life, and is a further measure of the intellectual ability of the student.

Science Building

Ursinus College is proud of its Science Building, erected in 1931-32 at a cost of approximately a half million dollars. The first floor and basement of this building are devoted to Psychology, Education, Mathematics and Physics. The second floor is the home of the Biology Department, and the third floor houses the Department of Chemistry.

The Science Building contains, among other things, thirteen teaching laboratories, two research laboratories, nine professors' laboratories, seven classrooms, and a lecture hall with gallery and projection booth.

Brodbeck and Curtis

The Brodbeck and Curtis dormitories for men are new buildings of exactly the same size and design. They are in English Colonial style, and are built of Chestnut Hill stone.

Each building has four floors, the downstairs floor being devoted partly to storage. The rooms are spacious, well-lighted and easy of access by means of fire proof stairways.

Brodbeck Dormitory is the gift of Andrew R. Brodbeck in memory of his deceased son, Wilson Brodbeck. Curtis is named after Cyrus H. K. Curtis, College benefactor.

"612"

These two women's dormitories, named after their locations on Main Street, are recent acquisitions. "612" has been used as a residence hall for three years, "944" for two years. The former accommodates fourteen students, the latter, sixteen.
Freeland

Freeland Hall is the original building of Freeland Seminary. On either side of this building are Derr and Stine, residence halls for men. On the two lower floors, Freeland houses the dining rooms, the kitchen, and storage and refrigeration rooms. The upper floors are fitted up for residence of men students. Freeland is built of stone, with a light sand finish. It is pronounced by architects to be one of the finest examples of its type of architecture in the United States.

The Library

The Alumni Memorial Library, located on the east campus, is planned in accordance with the latest ideas of library administration. In the wings adjoining the central hall are seminar rooms, workrooms, a faculty room, and museum. The Library was erected by the alumni and non-graduate former students as a tribute to their fellows who served in the World War.

Winter Scene

It might seem somewhat of an anomaly at this season of the year to show a picture of the campus covered with snow. Beautiful as the grounds are when they are resplendent with the verdant vegetation of Spring, they are no less attractive when they are enhanced by the snows of Winter. In this picture can be seen Freeland and its adjuncts, with Bomberger Hall in the distance.
In recognition of the fact that athletics have assumed a very prominent place in the minds of college and university alumni generally, and that too often they tried to emphasize but one phase of the subject and fail to see the whole picture, we have asked Director of Athletics Johnson to prepare a concise statement of the general athletic policy of Ursinus for the benefit of the readers of the Weekly, which we are happy to print below.

The academic standards of an educational institution should be the determining factor when efforts are made to evaluate an athletic program, since the work of the classroom is the criterion by which such an institution is judged.

Ursinus has always enjoyed the reputation of having high academic standards, and at the same time her traditions in athletics have been a source of pride to every loyal alumnus. At no time in the history of Ursinus athletics has there been any suggestion that our teams have occupied the spotlight to the detriment of the College as a whole. We have enjoyed periods of great successes as well as seasons filled with disappointments, but despite these vicissitudes of fortune, Ursinus has earned the respect and appreciation of the collegiate world. Not only have our teams displayed the qualities essential in games but much of this reputation has been built on the adherence to some of the finer concepts of competition as evidenced by the conduct of players and coaches, both on and off the field of play. Just as the College is interested in maintaining its position in the academic world, so are we vitally concerned in the perpetuation of the athletic standards which have become characteristic.

During the past five years, the curve of athletic achievement has shown a steady downward course which hit bottom during the past football season. Having experienced the unhappy accompany of the downward path, we must not be content to languish in the depths and view the situation through the dark glasses of 1938; rather our perspective should include a long-range program which has as its objective the successes of the 1930-34 period. Such progress must necessarily be slow and deliberate, and we trust that our friends will be patient and tolerant, for violent surges, either to the heights or to the depths, often prove very embarrassing.

Two years ago, a very definite swing was noted in soccer, basketball and baseball, and under normal conditions, football will follow suit. Since football provides the spotlight for the entire program, however, the casual observer very often gauges the results of the entire year by its success or failure, when closer investigation might prove otherwise.

We believe that in all athletic endeavor, a normal amount of winning must ensue or the whole program collapses. Without the will to win of any choice to win, play degenerates into a mere exhibition, not a game. To the general public, a college is known by the company that it keeps. It is therefore important that Ursinus plays the best colleges in its area rather than the colleges represented by the best teams. It will be our aim to plan schedules which will bring us in competition with colleges whose scholarly and athletic aims approach ours and who are in our natural field of rivalry. Games with teams normally out of our class will be discontinued, and schedules will be built around colleges comparable to our own. This may mean the appearance of new faces from time to time, but since our schedules have been completed for 1939 and 1940, no changes will be evident before 1941.

In short, our objective is to provide Ursinus with varsity teams equipped with coaching and material that can compete with normal success against our natural opponents, supplemented by an intramural program, inviting and diversified, so that all students will be given the opportunity to engage in some form of healthful exercise.

Nazi aggression are ridiculous in that they assume this aggression will first lead to the fall of the European democratic states. Britain stands higher now in her might, France, strengthened by a firmer regime than preceding ones, is no laughing matter now, and the U. S. S. R. and her satellites are not to be ignored. Should war come the Allied bloc would make an excellent showing—far better than they did in 1939 against the Central Powers.

Let us not be sidetracked from the issue of isolation—President Roosevelt need not immortalize himself further by shedding the blood of Americans on foreign soil.

Grizzly Track Team Travels To Swarthmore Today for Eastern Conference Meet

The Bear trackmen journey to Swarthmore today for the all-important Conference meet, which brings together Franklin and Marshall, Gettysburg, Drexel, Muhlenberg, and Ursinus.

The meet seems to point toward F. and M. as Conference champ, but Gettysburg looks like a strong contender. Both teams are well-rested and ready for plenty of strength in all events.

Muhlenberg is the unknown in the meet, as the Bears have run up against the other teams in previous meets. Gettysburg took a triangular meet against Ursinus and Drexel with Ursinus finishing in second place.

Franklin and Marshall Bears Track with

Ninth - Innning Rally Falls Short as Drexel Downs Eatsmen, 8-7

A big last-inning rally by the Ursinus baseball team, which produced seven runs, fell short yesterday, when they lost to Drexel, 8-7, on the home field. The visitors took the lead in the fourth inning and, aided by the Bears' errors, went on to win the game.

Fred Swift started on the mound for the Eatsmen, and was relieved in the eighth, while Zimmers went the way for the Dragons.

In the fourth, Ethling fielded the ball and scored when the ball got away from Thompson. F. Quinn and Clyde then drove in and scored when the ball got away from Thompson. F. Quinn and Clyde then drove in and scored when the ball got away from Thompson.

The Dragons had a big sixth inning, starting with J. Quinn's single to left field, and Ethling's single to right, which sent Quinn to third. Drexel hit to Harris, forcing Quinn coming home, and F. Quinn walked, loading the bases. Clyde's double to center field scored Ethling and Quinn. Going to third, Quinn came home on Kaleb's sacrifice to Swift, and Clyde repeated the hit, but Zimmers went down swinging.

The visitors blasted Swift from the hill in the eighth. Ethling going to first on Power's error, D-Larso and Quinn singling to left, scoring Ethling. Clyde then stepped up and blasted a long homer to right field, scoring D-Larso and Quinn, to complete the total of eight runs.

The Bears made a final brilliant attempt to pull the game out of the ninth, but just fell short. Harris started the rally with a single, and Walt Chalk, pinch-hitting for Power, doubled to center field. Harris going to third. Spohn hit to Kiefer, and grounded to Quinn, scoring Harris.

MacMahon kept the rally going with a grounder to Ethling, while the latter muffied, and Chalk scored. Thompson reached first on an error. MacMahon advancing to third. Power took a base on an error. Ethling's single to left sent MacMahon on to second, Kiefer's home on a single to center field. Harry Atkinson cleared the bases with a triple defendant to drive down the first base line. Howie Wise and Clzok then hit the ball, and Chalk reached to third to end the game.

By taking all but two first places against the Bear trackmen, the F. and M. Dragons were definitely demonstrated on Tuesday that they probably have the best team around all around teams in the Conference. The Dragons took the first and third places for F. and M. to 33 for the Grizzlies.

The two firsts taken by the Bears were Captain Rohbach's first in the broad jump, and Ed Kneitler in the low hurdles.

Babcock, competing for the first time this year, ran a brilliant race in the low hurdles. Getting off to a great start, he quickly opened up a wide lead, which he never relinquished.

The Diplomats were paced by two double winners. Speedy Bill Keyhoff showed his heels in both of the dashes to win easily. His best time was in the winning, which he breezed in 25.5. Big Alex Shub­noff accounted high-scoring honors by starting the meet off with a win in the shot put, then coming back later to win the discus with a throw of 121.2, 11 feet.

“Ringer” Cohen, who established a new college record in the javelin against Villanova only a week ago, showed his superiority by capturing first place with ease. All of the distance events went to F. and M. Howard and Roberts doing well in the three-mile and two mile respectively. Roberts turned in one of the finest performances of the afternoon when he circled the track eight times for the two mile in 20 minutes and 57 seconds.

Cusine and Ethling both turned in seconds for the Bears. Cusine getting second in both the high hurdles and the Broad jump, while Ethling came through with one in the discus.
