student opinion

THE U. S. IN CHINA

We made a mistake, and we apologize for it. We thought there was student opinion on this campus. But there isn't. We ran a poll in the last issue of the `Weekly' on the question, `Should the United States withdraw its naval and military forces from the danger zone in China?' and we had a recurrence of the Panay incident!' It is so happened, however, that no one answered the question. Not a single ballot was cast.

The significance of this you may conjecture for yourselves, for this is not an immediate point. We may mention in passing, however, that the Ursinus student may not be the exception. The Pittsburgh Duquesne Duke ran a poll on the same question, and it evoked one response: `The Duke is discontinuing the practice of asking for student opinion, because of a `complete lack of interest of the student body.' It is understood that there seems to be nothing else for the Duke to do but to do likewise.

We may be permitted to venture an opinion on this question. As long as we raised it, we may as well answer it.

We believe that the United States should without further ado take every sailor, every soldier, and every marine out of the fighting area, and we want to prevent it in the future by ganging up against the aggressor nations. Perhaps we may be permitted to venture an opinion on this question.

We believe that the United States could not have done much for the China situation and could not do much for the China situation if it is to preserve the peace of the world now and its future, must enter into international cooperation to halt the present movement of international anarchy manifested by the United States and other nations have quartered the world to protect one hundred and twenty millions in China.
