The New Science of Instruction.

A new and improved system of instruction has been adopted by the government of the United States. The system is based on the principle that all children are alike and that all children learn at the same rate.

The system is divided into three parts: reading, writing, and arithmetic. Each part is divided into five levels, with each level containing ten sub-levels.

The reading level consists of ten sub-levels, each containing ten books. The books are arranged in order of difficulty, with the easiest books at the beginning and the most difficult books at the end.

The writing level consists of ten sub-levels, each containing ten exercises. The exercises are arranged in order of difficulty, with the easiest exercises at the beginning and the most difficult exercises at the end.

The arithmetic level consists of ten sub-levels, each containing ten problems. The problems are arranged in order of difficulty, with the easiest problems at the beginning and the most difficult problems at the end.

The system is designed to allow children to progress at their own pace, with each child being able to advance to the next level when they have mastered the current level.

The new system is expected to be implemented in all schools across the United States, with the first phase of implementation beginning in the fall of 2023.

We want one or two men in each department to check off the goods and prices in our hands, to see that the customers are getting what they paid for.

We must have a careful check on our goods, but we must clean our showrooms. The people are looking for bargains and the sooner we can show them the better.

We boast of our Bargains for Christmas Buyers. The people are always ready to buy if the goods and prices are right, and no time in the round year holds as many bargain surprises as the holiday season.

ON THE ADVANTAGES OF KEEPING SHEEP.

Within the past ten years a large number of farmers have been impressed with the advantages of raising sheep. They have been made aware of the fact that these animals are readily raised and are profitable when properly cared for. Many of them have been able to obtain sheep from neighbors and to keep them on improved pastures. They have found that sheep are not only profitable, but that they can be raised without much labor and that the profits from the sale of wool and mutton are large enough to make them worth while. They have also been able to keep a flock of sheep in good condition, and to make a profit from the sale of their wool and mutton. They have found that sheep are not only profitable, but that they can be raised without much labor and that the profits from the sale of wool and mutton are large enough to make them worth while.
