With the resignation of President Orm, Ursinus faces a loss which is two-fold in its major aspects. Not only is the College losing a leader who was alert and aggressive, but it is now faced with the problem of choosing a successor to carry on the work where Dr. Orm leaves off.

During Dr. Orm's administration the size and development of the College have increased remarkably. His forceful and intelligent effort is largely responsible for the place of importance and esteem in which the institution is held. In addition, new buildings were added, both faculty and enrollment greatly increased, many new courses covering a wide range were introduced, and the endowment and assets of the College grew out of all proportion. This progressive trend stands as a tribute to Dr. Orm as a leader and a President, and as a challenge to the faculty and students in the difficult position of choosing a successor who can fill his office.

The College cannot stand still; it must move on. In entrusting its most important and political position, the College must choose a man of the same strength and direction of the leader it is losing. Its attributes must be such that an educator who must also have a close contact with other fields. This is the problem now before the College: to find a successor, able and fitted to carry on the development so definitely begun by Dr. Orm. Any let-down will be more serious now after it has been attained, than it would have been before Ursinus had reached its wide-spread recognition.

At the University of Paris a course is offered in "Rare Wines and Liquors." Perhaps that is one of the culminating appreciation courses we so often hear about. But who doesn't appreciate a course like that?

The Leigh Brown and White has a new way to determine student opinion. Each week a senior writes a letter to the editor and at the end of the letter votes must be written for the letter the following week.

Muhlenberg College is considering a system of proctors to rule recent disturbances and rowdism. This system would keep order, but it is doubtful whether it would prevent the violent incidents.

At Ohio State University, the student bar association offers free drinks to any student involved in a scrape with the law. The idea is to prevent the student from getting into any more trouble. We don't guarantee its success.

A gift of 200 books from the Italian government was recently accepted by Johns Hopkins University. An expected anti-Fascist sentiment in the administration failed to materialize.

In order to chair the Board of the Junior Prom at Pitt University, you must first file a petition, then be elected a member of the Junior Prom. After that you must file another petition, after which the final selection is made by another petition.

A professor whose psychology theory says "Fat women are killed for a smoke because they have been taught an approved way of making a bed." He only has the originality to make it show. If the person who broke the bed must have a couple of bruises.

Classroom Supplement: Webster Here's a new and unusual description of a classroom apartment. "A person with an endowed sort of stomach." The text is too small to read.

An editorial comment appears in the newspaper, discussing the need for a successor to President Orm. The author argues that the College must choose a leader who is alert and aggressive, and that the new leader must have a close contact with other fields.

In INTERDOM PLAYOFF

Erik's to Play Post-Season Game

To Decide Championship

The play-off between the winners of each of the Inter-dorm touch-football schedule, Brodiek, the winner of the first half, and Erik, the second half winners, resulted in a scoreless tie, Tuesday afternoon. The championship game was to decide the holder of the football trophy.

With both teams presenting their full strength, the game proved to be the best exhibition of football of the season. Neither team was able to supply the necessary punch to score, although Brodiek threatened in the latter part of the fourth quarter after a substantial march of about 75 yards to the 10 yard line. Here, Derre braced to make a gallant stand, gaining possession of the ball on their own 20 yard line. The punting of both teams was instrumental as a grounding with Deery holding the edge.

In order to decide the ultimate champion, another game will be played on Patterson Field, Tuesday afternoon, December 10.

In the foreground: Howard Housland, McClinch-Marshall engineer, wearing the picturesque engineers' "hard hat," a necessary protection on big jobs. "An engineer's life," he says, "calls for physical fitness and energy. When my pep is at low ebb, there's nothing like a Camel, for a Camel chases away all signs of tiredness. I always get a 'lift' with a Camel. I have preferred Camels for years because of their good taste and mildness. They never irritate or give me a throat. That's one way you can tell Camels are made from more expensive tobaccos."

COSTLIER TOBACCO?

Camels are made from finer tobaccos. More Expensive tobaccos... Turkish and Domestic... than any popular brand. (Said) by R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY N. C.
