THE COMING YEAR.

The approach of the beginning of another year in the history of mankind gives rise to contemplations of the past, present, and future. If these reflections emphasize the importance of avoiding armies; his rival, Czar Alexander, as the repetition during 1921 of the errors and misdeeds of 1920, they egotistical, more successful, more emoshould be helpful and strengthening in their influence.

The demoralizing aftermath of the world war will continue next year and years thereafter, but let it be very earnestly hoped that as time passes the tide of graft, greed, and harmful dissipations and extravagances will finally recede and that another long era of normal conditions will be firmly established. But this hope, to be more is an appeal in Napoleon to something than a mere idle hope, must give rise to intensive effort on the part of a considerable majority of the members of society in the direction of rational and moral thinking and economical living. The civilization of the present is freighted with a vast amount of flux and reckless disregard for the more serious problems of existence. Many of those who essay to direct the thought and action of the multitudes are still clinging to outworn and impotent palliatives, instead of adapting themselves and their utterances and admonitions to the real facts and conditions of human life as now existing. These facts, amply supported by the conclusions of science, afford no room for mere superannuated conjectures and claims proven to be false. But they do afford wide room and support for the exercise of rational and moral effort in every day activities and affairs of human necessity and concern. The development of strong and worthy individuals of society absolutely depends upon those forms of fundamental educational instruction which will best equip men and women to clearly discern the difference between potently rightful and wrongful acts and to strive hard to follow right paths. Ignorance, superstition, bigotry (and intolerance for the expression of honest opinions and convictions) have always and everywhere been the notorious and destructive foes of humanity. These stubbornly insistent influences only can be held well in check and neutralized by true enlightenment as to the naturally constructive and destructive as a rule. We are too ready to acagencies which absolutely make for the good or ill of individuals and of society. Supernaturalism has had its day, has had the special support of the strong arm of civil power, and after centuries of wrathful preachments and arrogant intrusion upon the rightful private liberties of individuals, is still floundering upon the rocks reared by purely natural processes. These rocks in so far as they stand for for human demoralization and destruction are in most part hidden from view. To establish their location and character, to the end that they may be avoided, is the TASK OF MEN; not of humanly improvised and imaginary gods to be adored and worshipped. Human life is very earthly and very real. Just what it means to each and peradoes fell on him, emptied his vaall must be learned through the altogether natural processes of reason | "The engineer was convinced that and clear discrimination, which clearly indicate the harm of wrongful, and the good of rightful, deeds. To live rightly and justly here and now is the REAL, VITAL problem, the proper solution of which will well take care of the future.

May 1921 increase, and add to the power of, the real uplifting influences which make for the permanent betterment of all mankind; increase, and add to the power of, such forms of human, earthly righteousness as will be indicated by the actual application of loy of making a good tennis stroke, the Golden Rule, the actual application of the principles of right action between man and man, to the end that "Man's Inhumanity to are due to euphoria. A SUGGESTIVE PARAGRAPH.

A news article in a Philadelphia daily contains the following paragraph relating to New York city:

Realizing that the use of dope, which has grown to immense droportions since prohibition, is greatly responsible for the wave of crime, Captain Tempest recently prepared for the wholesale seizure of illicit narcotic drugs in this city.

Whether drugs incite to crime is perhaps a somewhat mooted question. Since the excessive use of intoxicating drinks has been regarded as the cause of most crimes, and since crime is on the increase in the absence of legalized traffic in such intoxicants, it would seem after all that whiskey and drugs are merely incidental to crime—that is: Criminals are mostly criminals, sober or drunk, or under the influence of narcotic drugs. Respecting the criminal portion of society it is a very safe guess that crime will continue on the increase until there is a cessation of the inane impotence in the legalized handling of criminals. In addition to adequately coping with crime much thought and action needs to be taken respecting the CAUSES underlying crime. Legalized prohibition, respecting either intoxicants or narcotic drugs, will never solve the menacing and perplexing problems relating to criminality.

STRAIGHT TALK.

Rev. William L. Sullivan, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian tinuance Church, New York city, in a recent sermon respecting the Lord's Day Alliance group of agitators, said:

"Human liberty still has to be on the watch against the enemy, the black battalion, the clerics," he said. "These people are a peril and menace to our Constitution and our freedom. Our Constitution was not meant or intended to be made a bag for police ordinances. Put this kind of thing into our Constitution and it will be broken not only frequently but defiantly. When that comes a good deal of what has been sacred in America will have gone forever. These men are a peril to the freedom of the United States and are a danger

If the Sabbatarians of the Alliance would devote as much time and effort in the cause of right living every day of the week as they do in attempting to bring the Church and State into still closer union, thereby undermining Constitutional liberty, they would accomplish some real practical good to mankind. But it appears they are beyond the reach of reason.

NAPOLEON'S ONE BIG OUALITY

Great Frenchman's Fascination Lay in His Directness, That's All, Says H. G. Wells,

The world has largely recovered from the mischief that Napoleon did; perhaps that amount of mischief had to be done by some agency; perhaps his career, or some such career, was a necessary consequence of the world's mental unpreparedness for the crisis of the revolution. But that his pecuitar personality should dominate the imaginations of great numbers of people, throws a light upon factors of enduring significance in our human

No doubt scale has something to do with the matter: he was a "record." the record plunger; but there is something more in it than that. There deeper and more fundamental in human nature than mere astonishment at bigness. His very deficiencies bring out starkly certain qualities that lurk suppressed and hidden in us all. He was unhampered. He had never a gleam of religion, or affection, or the

He flung his armies across Europe straight at their mark, there never were such marches before; he fought to win; when he struck, he struck with all his might. Aerial photography has entered the real estate field. Now, if you wish to buy a suburban residence, a downtown property or a country house, you can go to a broker's office and examine, probably with a reading glass, a most interesting and detailed aerial photograph of the neighborhood that you have in mind. The aerial picture very quickly brings the customer to a deision, either, to see the property or to look elsewhere. It saves time and the expense of long and often futile trips.—Youth's Companion.

There is an unprecedented demand for raisins at the present time because of their use in the manufacture of home brows, but it is anticipated that this will be changed in the course of a few years because the interest in the preparations will declibe and in view of that the Agricultural department is at work in discovering new uses for raisins so that the industry will not be wrecked. Looking back on it all, I realize that America never struck me as a new country, although its inhabitants often seemed to be a new people, writes E. V. Lucas in the Outlook. he teaches it, is better and purer than Parisian French, which of course, is all a matter of taste. There was a time, however, when French seemed to be foreign to Geneva and a medieval schoolmaster could remark of that tongue that it should be taught in the city, because "in the opinion of the learned, it is by no means to be despised." Though the date of the erection of the first public school was late as 1429 there is a curious note extant from the Twelfth century anen an inquiry for a teacher in Geneva who gave lessons gratuitously. The town councilors naively declared that they knew of no such person, but were quite sure there was one who gave essons for money. The first school-

The Ford Coupe is surely the Salesman's car. Thousands of them are bought every year by firms employing traveling salesmen. Many firms buy one or one hundred at a time, because they know, from experience, that the Ford Coupe increases the efficiency of the salesmen at a minimum expense.

Contractors, builders; collectors, solicitors, physicians, all find the Ford Coupe the most convenient as well as the most economical among motor cars. Facilities should be made adequate, the commission says, to enable the producer to ship freely into the central markets and 'with proper protection of his interests." The marketing system should be so governed that obectionable hoarding would be eliminated and proper co-ordination of transportation facilities should be accomplished to make deliveries certain tics. when required.

The commission says that "the needed reforms can hardly be expected to be accomplished by the initiative of the dealers," and asserts that State and municipal authoriteis lack adequate power to effectively regulate the handling of the food supplies. Although co-operation of State and local authorities and railroads might accomplish the ends sought, the commission believes this plan does not hold out much hope for a satisfactory solution of the problem. Turning to wheat products, the commission says it has found that or who permitted their dog to run concentration of the milling industry has progressed far enough so that "probably 10 of the largest milling concerns could supply the demand of the country for flour." he commission mentions incidentally that its figures from 37 milling corporations showed that their sales had increased from $160,000,000 to $354,000,000 between 1914 and 1918, while their annual profits had grown from $5,500, 000 to $20,000,000 in the same period.

NEW RECORD IN DOG LAW ENFORCEMENT

The year 1920 surpassed all prevous records for vigorous enforcement of the Dog Law of 1917. During the year just closing, a total of 1,835 prosecutions were entered throughout the State for violations of the provisions of the Dog Law.

Practically all these prosecutions were entered against dog owners who failed to secure licenses for their dogs at large, particularly at night. The game wardens of the State and the county authorities materially aided agents of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in the enforcing of the law and the rounding up of the delinquents.

Washington county, the principal sheep raising county of the State, furnished the greatest number of prosecutions during the year.
