"TAKE THE WORLD AS IT IS."

A very dear personal friend of mine, after reading "The Barbaric in American Civilization" in this column, two weeks ago, indited and forwarded to me the following lines:

> How it should be is none of my biz, I'm willing to take the world as it is, Those who don't like it can get off the earth, For much time was lost on the day of their birth.

My friend thus adversely and poetically refers to the INDEPEND-ENT's comments on the Jersey City prize fight witnessed by 90,000 people at a cost of $1,500,000. To the bit of well-written poetry my friend added a little prose to the effect that if Carpentier had only "knocked out" Dempsey the affair in Jersey City would have been "patriotic, elevating, refined, brainy, etc," thus indicating that notwithstanding his absorbing interest in the fight he was disappointed on account of the result of the exhibition of some continuing Stone Age culture.

Take the "world as it is" and let'er rip! Be content with things as they are! That phrases the attitude of all the conservatives of the past and present and indicates the natural and persistant resistance of a portion of humanity to any forward movement directed toward higher levels of human existence. Had mankind as a whole, thousands of years ago, been content with things as they were then, men would still be living in caves and dugouts and swinging clubs and stone axes. "Things" will not remain as they are because the universal law of change (evolution) spells either progression or retrogression-moving forward or backward; one way or the other. "Things" must move. Were it otherwise all "things" would remain in a state of inertia forever! If our more recent forbears had been satisfied with "things as they are" there could have been made no educational progress; my dear friend would not now be writing fine prose and jingling rhymes. He might be entertaining himself as the lord of a hole in the ground or a hut with turf for a roof He might be as happy as he now isthough he is mighty happy-but that's not a point in the argument. His wife would continue to gather firewood and do about all the work to be done while he would hunt and fish and loaf and sleep most of his time. But the processes of Nature do not operate that way in determining the destinies of individuals and races. Every step forward meets with resistance; resistance is as necessary as action and reaction-when there is sufficient resistance forward steps are retraced. But, in large part, progressive evolution is dominant amid the multifarious activities of human existence. Therefore, slow advances in civilization. A little while ago ring fighters used their bare fists in punishing their opponents. Progressive American civilization now decrees that they must use padded gloves! Our civilization in many respects is not quite so barbaric as it once was, though in many ways it continues to tenaciously cling to barbarisms and savageries of the past. "Things as they are" are the presidency, to spend his days in not as they must and will be if the race is to get beyond expending $1,500,000 in a half day to witness one man "beat-up" another man. Just so, or it will move backward to bare fists and clubs. One way or the other. "Things as they are" are not as they must and will be if men are to quit causing the killing, by thousands, of their fellowmen. The appalling "martyrdom of man" in the present and bygone centuries is but a part of the stupendous panorama of human life-because "things" will not remain as "they are," and never will. The forward movements of humanity, if they continue for many centuries, will lead to less human woe and misery than now exists and shadows and blights human lives. If retrogressive evolution intervenes then, civilization good night! So long as large masses of mankind find more enjoyment in witnessing a "slugging match" (because so many citizens are satisfied with "things as they are") than they can find in intellectual advancement and in various higher considerations of human existence, "slugging matches" and sensational newspapers catering to sluggers and their devotees will continue in evidence. But the influence of genuine human progress is always forward, not backward toward the dark ages. Therefore, there is hope that better "things" will by and by take the place of prize fights and gambling jamborees. Meanwhile those who insist upon being satisfied with "things as they are" will continue to serve as the votaries of reaction and retrogression and thus perform their part in the economy of Nature-in the great drama of human life. I have no condemnation for my dear friend who writes fine prose and courts the muses, and who appears to be satisfied with "things as they are!" He is doing the

"PROTECTION!"

Yes! Protection!—that's the problem now before Congress; Republicans largely in the majority. Republican New England opposes a duty on mineral oils and hides, because such a duty would impose an additional cost upon the manufacturers of New England. Strange! The old protective tariff argument was that duty upon imports stimulated manufacturing enterprises at home. The same argument contained no reference to a corresponding increase in the cost to consumers of manufactured articles. The argument has shifted. However, it remains a popular contention of Republican statesmen that a "protective tariff" is necessary to prosperity in the United States and the beneficiaries of "Big Business" heartily support, financially and otherwise, the contention. Protection to consumers of commodities is another matter. Big Business finds no attraction in that direction. Nevertheless there is hard sledding ahead for a rejuvenated protective tariff.

SHEER BARBARISM.

Words are inadequate to express the degradation of the Southern communities where a woman was tarred and feathered because she had been married three times, and where similar treatment was administered to a clegryman who had been guilty of the heinous offense of seeking to impart education to colored persons. The lack of chivalry evidenced by the punishment of the woman is characteristic of the ruffians who, under the pretext of protecting the public morals, give play to their own lawless instincts. They must be regarded as the scum of the earth. The people of America annually raise many millions of dollars for the education of Africans, Chinese, Esquimaux, and other backward races. This is considered admirable missionary work. Why should not the same policy be followed with the unfortunates who are in our very midst? Is not the American negro as much entitled to an education as a native of Liberia or Alaska? To call such instruction the preaching of social equality, and to tar and feather a clergyman engaged in such excellent labor, betrays abysmal depth of ignorance and prejudice. Such incidents, lief in the old adage that "the good confined almost entirely to benighted sections of the South, are a die young" is one of them. burning disgrace to the people of the whole United States. They reveal an underlying stratum of barbarism that is alarming. No nation can call itself civilized that allows such brutal affairs to pass duke of Lancaster, were the first Engwithout a vigorous protest.

THE CAVERNS OF LURAY IN THE midst of the broad winding valley of the Shenandoah Riverthe "Daughter of the Stars" as the Indians called it-in northwestern Virginia, flanked on the east by a line of mountains known as the Massanuttons and on the west by the main chain of the Blue Ridge range, is the quaint, oldish town of Luray.

Ten miles west is Cave Hill, under which is one of our great natural curiosities-the Luray Caverns, to which have come to wonder, study and admire, scientists, explorers and tourists from every quarter.

Here the mysterious workings of nature have produced a veritable underground fairy palace, with miles of passageways lined with an infinite variety of curious, gigantic and wonformations. Almost every object of nature seems to be reproduced with surprising reality. The indescribably fantastic groupings of the weird and grotesque formations, the beauty and the coloring of the titanic tapestry effects and the translucent and symmetrical arrangement appear to be the handiwork of nature in a playful mood. One chamber measures almost 400 feet in length by 125 feet in width. Others possess lofty, arched and elaborately ornamented domes. A most marvelous formation bears strong resemblance to a gigantic pipe-organ. When struck, these "chimes" give out, low, sweet, full notes which re-echo rather spookily through the surround-

This cavern is brilliantly electric lighted, surprisingly free from dampness-in fact the atmosphere is pleasingly delightful, the normal, year-round temperature is about 54 degrees and the journey through it an entirely new and novel and unusual sensation.

The structure was built in 1743 and contains many of the original furnishings and relics of the family. Clustered about it are the barn, coach house, spinning house, meat house, ice house, wash house, kitchen and other outbuildings. Nearby is a remarkable, old-fashioned garden, with quaint, oddly-designed spaces set off by bex hedges, said to be 150 years old. In this garden is a coffee tree said to have been planted in 1824 by General Lafayette and cuttings from a willow tree which it is claimed were brought from the grave of the great Napoleon at St. Helena.

GROUP of mounds, about seventy in number, located in southwestern Illinois, not a great distance from St. Louis, comprise what is said to be the largest remaining work of the aborigines north of Old Mexico.

Whence came these Mound Builders, how long they remained and whither they went, history seems not to record. Scientists have failed to establish the definite period of time which their construction represents. That these monuments of prehistoric man directly connect us with a vanished people of whose history we know little or nothing there is, of course, no question. It is thought by some that the socalled missions of California, many of which are falling into decay, are as infants compared with these ancient piles of earth which stand in mute evidence of the fact that, years before modern civilization, this section was the seat of an empire of a most

The greatest of these mounds is known, locally, as Monk's mound (legend has it that a colony of Trappist monks once lived upon it). It is more than 100 feet high, covers sixteen acres and, it is believed, must have required 8,000 men two years to

Although known to the police, he has been "operating" in St. John's Wood, London, for more than a month and of each other.

He returned a fortnight ago to a rose Hill, where he had taken apartments, while the other boarders were at dinner. Inquiries resulted in the discovery that the lodger had gone set with diamonds, worth $2,000. A woman in King Henry's road, London, is the latest victim. On Monday the man rang up and in a short time arrived in a taxicab. He stated that he would fetch his luggage later. Insisting in paying in advance he made out a check for a week's board and made himself agreeable by his musical accomplishments, but a prolonged absence in the bathroom excited suspicion, and it was found that a trunk had been forced and $1,000 worth of jewelry stolen. A finely-cased gold watch, valued at $500, was among the articles stolen, and the check was dishonored.-From the Continental Edition of the London Mail,

OUIT TELLING FUNNY STORIES

Why Congressman Kelly Sacrificed Humor on the Altar of Serious Statesmanship.

Patrick Kelly, a representative in congress from Michigan, says that he used to tell many stories in going about in his political campaigns. The audiences always liked them and wen away pleased. Telling them looked like good politics.

Years later Kelly would meet a man and he would say: "I have met you before. I remem ber very well a certain story you

Then he would repeat the anecdote. Kelly would ask him what else he remembered that had been said, and he vould be unable to remember a thing. The congressman began to wonder if the telling of stories prevented more serious matters from finding lodgement in the hearer's mind. He became fearful. He was not sure, but he decided to lay off the funny story. So was the possibility of a multitude of good laughs sacrificed at the altar of serious states manship.-New York Sun.

These sales would be extremely unprofitable, if he handled stamps grouchily or grudgingly, saying by his manner: "Whatta you mean by bothering me to sell you postage stamps?' But he has signs in his window tell ing that he has plenty of stamps, and makes a special effort to be more pleasant and accommodating and gracious about a stamp sale than at any other time. He has attracted thousands of permanent customers in that way. A WINNING COMBINATION

For Dairy Cows Here is a dairy feed combination that has proven a winner wherever used. By feeding these two feeds in combination you will have the most simple, easy-to-feed ration possible to compound—one that will not only produce exceptional results in milk production and keep your cows in the very best physical condition, but will also save you a lot of time and labor and the guess-work incident to your own mixing. These feeds are manufactured by The Quaker Oats Co., the leading feed manufacturers in the world. These feeds are the result of long experience and have the endorsement of the foremost dairymen. Let us supply you with these result-producing feeds.

Controlling Dreams. There does not seem to be much doubt among mental specialists that dreams can be controlled to a certain extent. Don't have "downy" pillows, which cause too much heat. They should be low, thus relieving the work of the heart. Windows should be left wide open. Let nervous children have a night-light. These are among the hints given by an expert to those who would have pleasant dreams.

This "Earth" Largely Water. A trifle more than seven-tenths of the surface of the globe is covered by the waters of the oceans. The total area covered by the latter exceeds the total area of the lands of the world by 83,000,000 square miles. Reckoned in terms of quantity, the oceans contain 324 cubic miles of fluid, or 14 times the bulk of all the lands in the world above sea level.

Saw the Sunny Side. A little fellow of seven, whose optimism was a perpetual surprise to his parents, was being punished by his father. He hoped now to stay forever in that place called home. Billy had roamed so long and so excitedly that nothing in the world seemed any better than an anchor in the way of memories. He loved the large, old rooms, with great yawning fireplaces in each. He loved the bit of flagged garden in the rear and he intended turning it into a veritable fairy garden. The ideas he had picked up in various parts of the globe were

It was while he was spading up preparatory to carrying out a circuar seat he had seen in a garden in London that Billy found his buried

That old tin box flung Billy straight back through the years until he was a lanky boy of twelve earthy and the contents musty, but Billy was as excited as if the old broken knife were a famous diamond and the mildewed note a queen's love missive. Also there were a broken Billy sat long and amusedly gaz-profession. Sundays he saved for his own garden, and on that day Billy, in old trousers and flannel shirt, enjoyed working out his schemes in that small back patch of property. The tin box was lying on his library table—he kept it there to amuse special friends with. Many a yarn of boyhood days had been unearthed from other heads by that buried treasure. Billy was working a great lion's head in plaster against his stone wall when he felt a bang on the side of his head. He glanced about for the attacking party, suspecting a small boy, such as himself had been, but was unsuccessful.

Good-naturedly he again bent over the plaster. This time an apple hit him squarely on the top of the head. His movement was too swift for the miscreant, for she was caught redhanded, or perhaps red-headed, for undoubtedly the head in the upper window next door was red-a flery,

Billy gazed upward and the pert little face in the window smiled down

"Hello, Billy!" she called. "Dalsy! By all that's holy! Do you still live there? Come down, this minute! I have something to show you," He still gazed unbelievingly at that head with its mop of red hair. For Billy had called it a mop twenty years ago and shamelessly he still called it a mop, albeit a burnished, coppery wonderful mop. "You used to be a red-headed, little freckle-faced imp!" shouted Billy. "And you still are a long-legged, tow-haired-youth!" flung Daisy. "And don't disgrace the neighborhood-remember, I am a dignified interior decorator—so stop shouting your flattering remarks. I am coming down

FOUNTAIN PEN NOT MODERN Abundant Proof That Contrivance Was Known as Far Back as the Year 1600.

In a review of Professor Weekley's Etymological Dictionary of Modern English surprise is expressed that the professor should be able to quote a reference to fountain pens in an advertisement published so far back as 1788. As a matter of fact, this form of writing implement must have been known nearly two centuries before this date, for E. S. Bate, in his "Touring in 1600," shows that travelers wrote with them at that time. By the mid dle of the Eighteenth century they had come to be called by their present name. A Dictionary of Arts and Sciences published in 1754 defines 'fountain pen" as "a pen made of silver, brass, etc., contrived to contain a considerable quantity of ink and let it flow out by gentle degrees. To use the pen, the cover must be aken off, and the pen a little shaken, o make the ink run more freely." British patents were obtained for fountain pens in 1809. Apparently it was not until the seventies of last century that fountain pens came into anything approaching general use.

A Diplomat. "It was a very shrewd and diplomatic culprit," says a Denver lawyer, who was brought before a judge in our town not so long ago. The judge fixed him with a stern eye and said: "'You are charged with having reg-

Removing Ink Stains. Pyrophosphate of soda is recomnended for the removal of ink stains. This salt does not injure vegetable fiber and yields colorless compounds with the ferric oxide of the ink. It is best to first apply tallow to the ink spot, then wash in a solution of pyrophosphate until both tallow and ink have disappeared. Another formula is to use a mixture of four parts of tartar and two parts of powdered alum. This is not injurious to cloth. Other stains also may be removed with her to come over to the house every
