PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION.

At the general election, next month, no less than fourteen proposed amendments to the Constitution of Pennsylvania will be voted on—for and against. It is most unfortunate that these amendments are to be voted on at a Presidential election, when the average voter thinks more about the success of his candidate than about constitutional amendments. However, it is the duty of electors to acquaint themselves with the amendments as proposed, so as to be able to vote intelligently. A summary of the more important constitutional amendment propositions, with comment, follows:

No. 1—Relates to a proposed amendment authorizing the State government to engage in the general printing business for the purpose of furnishing the State with all needed printing matter. This proposed amendment is open to serious objection. There does not appear to be sufficient reason why the State should engage in the printing business, since contracts can be made with printers in competition, one with the other. It is not a function of the State to engage in any commercial enterprise or business.

No. 2—Authorizing the State to issue bonds to the amount of $8,000,000 for the erection and equipment of additional buildings at Pennsylvania State College. The important agricultural work the college is engaged in, is an argument in favor of a bond issue.

No. 3—Proposed amendment authorizing the State to issue bonds to the amount of twenty-five millions of dollars for the purpose of acquiring land in the State for forestry purposes. State forestry is a very important undertaking, looking toward the future forestry requirements of the State.

No. 4—Proposition to issue bonds to the amount of $5,000,000 for acquiring and erecting buildings for the use of the Pennsylvania National Guard. Is this sum not excessive?

No. 5—Relates to proposed uniform taxation.

No. 6—Refers to the formation of election districts.

No. 7—Proposes that Pittsburg be authorized to levy special assessments against property owners for street and other improvements.

No. 8—Fixing the limit of the debt of any city at 10 per centum of the assessed value of property.

No. 9—Authorizing the State, by the General Assembly, irrespective of any existing debt, to issue bonds to the amount of $150,000,000 for the purpose of improving and rebuilding highways of the Commonwealth. This proposed amendment should be voted down. It is the opinion of those in authority that the State, with its present revenues, can take care of the building and the repairing of State highways. "Irrespective of any debt" sounds like reckless financing.

No. 10—Authorizing the State to issue bonds not exceeding 50 millions of dollars for the acquisition of land and buildings for State purposes. This proposed amendment is of a doubtful character.

Nos. 11, 12, 13, and 14, relates to taxation and exemption laws, the registration of voters, the consolidation of poor districts, and special legislation for Pittsburg and Allegheny counties.

POLITICAL TWADDLE.

American voters have an excuse for becoming weary upon listening to or reading the usual Presidential campaign twaddle and bunk with relation to Prosperity as being the especial gift of one particular political party. Aside from more or less isolated and spasmodically inflated prosperity inuring largely to the special benefit of special corporate interests, because of excessive tariff taxes, neither the Republican nor the Democratic party has any more to do with economic conditions throughout the country than the "man in the moon." The President of the American Bankers' Association, Thomas R. Preston, takes about the same view regarding current political twaddle. In his address, opening the recent convention of the Association, said:

We are coming to a new era in our political life. There will be no disturbance of legitimate business, either large or small, or the prevalent prosperity, regardless of which party wins the Presidency in the coming election.

Leaders in the financial world, to a very large extent, entertain the same view.

PERHAPS THE ONLY SIGN OF ITS KIND IN THE UNITED STATES.

Perhaps the only roadway sign of its kind in the United States is placed just below the Doylestown limit along the much traveled concrete highway between Philadelphia and Easton. The sign is of metal 8 x 12 feet and bears the following inscription in large black letters: "Grant and Garfield said church property should be taxed." That's exactly what they said, and that's exactly what millions of taxpayers in the United States think. But—it is not a popular opinion, and therefore not freely expressed in a public manner. But this consideration does not detract from the soundness, nor the justice, of the opinion. The ground upon which appears the rare sign belongs to Frank Hart, of Doylestown.

VOLSTEAD LAW ENFORCEMENT.

Both political parties and both candidates for the Presidency are equally pledged to Volstead law enforcement. In so far as the Republican party is responsible up to date for the grossly inefficient enforcement act, just so far the Republican party must be held responsible. Its promises for the future must be judged by what it has accomplished in the past. Mere self-justification and mere promise for the future, should be judged in the light of past evidence and future probabilities based upon that evidence.

MORE SILLINESS FROM A SILLY SOURCE.

Editor Sanborn of the North Penn Review directs attention to a silly proposition in the line of proposed law making. It is proposed to make the "thumb jerker"—the individual who beckons auto drivers to halt and take him along—an outlaw—by law. As though any autoist is now compelled to take any stranger into his car because the latter desires a free ride. To make a request for a ride a crime is about the limit of silliness in keeping, of course, with the pervasively false notion that the multifarious activities, actions, and habits of the human race should be regulated by law.

STRONG HAVERFORD ELEVEN

Black managed to punt out of danger again from behind the goal line. In the third period Haverford started a march down the field making four first downs in a row. A fumble on the 10 yard line which Ursinus recovered averted a probable score. Collision missed a field goal for Haverford in this frame. After a 15 yard penalty on Haverford for holding another attack by Tripp placed the ball on the 20 yard line as the period ended.

In the last period Tripp carried the ball five plays straight taking the ball across for a touchdown from the one-yard line on the last attempt. Tripp missed the try for extra point. The game ended with the ball in the middle.

LAST PERKY LEAGUE MEETING

The last meeting of the 1928 Perkiomen Valley Baseball League was held at Graterford on Monday evening. All the old officers were re-elected for the 1929 season—Pres. M. W. Meisel, serving his eighth term since the league was organized; vice president Ralph Hartenstine; secretary, Ezra Markley and treasurer Carl Marburger; commissioners, A. H. Hendricks, Roy Thomas and Lloyd Johnson.

Changes in the by-laws, as read at the last meeting of the organization, include the new player ruling which permits only bona-fide Montgomery county residents from participating with the league teams. All players on the final 1928 player lists, however, are eligible for competition next season. The league went on record as approving a split season of two halves of 10 games each. Carl Marburger, of Trooper, and William McAllister, of Collegeville, were named on a schedule committee, with power to appoint a third member.

All six clubs—Schwenksville, Graterford, Skippack, Oaks, Collegeville and Trooper—will be represented next year, it was indicated at Monday night's session.

O. OF I. A. INDOOR BASEBALL

Benevolent Council No. 25, O. of I. A., Evansburg, are again entering an indoor baseball team in the Perkiomen Valley Boosters' Association League this year which is made up of teams from Royersford, Phoenixville, Norristown, Conshohocken, Fort Washington and Evansburg. Last year the boys of Benevolent Council won the pennant which is now on display in their lodge room. All members wishing to join the team are requested to come out this Thursday evening as a team from Trappe are coming down to play a set of 3 games. The League schedule opens up on October 15 with Benevolent Council visiting Hartranft Council of Norristown.

TOMMIE SHOT 'EM STRAIGHT

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

THE occasion of Mr. Amos Abernathy's visit to the Dunkirk Protestant orphan asylum was a momentous one. It had been announced by Miss Smithers to the group of small people sitting in a semicircle about her.

"It means, children, that one of you will have a home—for life! Mr. Abernathy is very wealthy . . . and no children. They are going to adopt one—I do not know whether it will be boy or girl—but I rather anticipate," and she looked down at the yellow curls of small Josie, the pet of the institution. "I anticipate it will be a girl. You see they have such beautiful things in their house, boys would ruin them! Now we are going to be dressed in our Sunday clothes and we are going to sit real pleasant and when Mr. Abernathy speaks we must say 'yes, sir,' very politely. And one of you will be chosen to live in his beautiful home."

"I ain't. I'm going in the thirteenth," lisped freckle-faced, toothless Tommie. "I don't want to live in his old bouth."

"Not much danger, Tommie. Sit down and keep still! And tomorrow, Tommie, when Mr. Abernathy is here, if you are naughty—if you tease the girls or pinch the cat as you did when the minister was here—or if you steal any cake or your face is dirty or you don't say 'yes sir,' you will be punished. I have stood all from you I can stand. You are naughty, you are naughty child and I tremble for your future. Now Josie, dear, can you remember your sweet little piece about the flowers? Maybe we can find time for you to recite it tomorrow when Mr. Abernathy is here. Stand up and begin—"

Josie endeavored to obey, but found she was fastened to her little chair with a tack through her dress and Tommie—freckle-faced, toothless Tommie—was once more in disgrace.

All the small inmates of the Dunkirk orphan asylum were duly dressed in their Sunday clothes the next afternoon. Tommie's hair was slicked back with water, some of which trickled over his forehead. On account of the missing front teeth he lisped badly.

"Thy Mith Smithers—If that old bird thinkth he wantth a boy in his bouth, tell him to blow away. None of uth fellerth want to be 'dopted. We're going to join the thirteenth—"

Mr. Abernathy proved to be a small, thin-faced, bald-headed man, who carried a cane and wore spats. He eyed the children over the top of his glasses as he took his seat on the platform beside Miss Smithers.

"Fine specimens of youth—fine, indeed—and eighteen of them from which to choose a happy little ray of sunshine to brighten our home—I do believe, madam, that boy in the second row is making faces at me—or do my eyes deceive me?"

Tommie's hands were folded and his face composed when Miss Smithers investigated. Peace again reigned. "Would you like to hear them sing, Mr. Abernathy?"

"Ah, yes, indeed—the sound of childish voices. And the children dutifully rendered 'America,' Tommie's voice above all others and sadly off-key. Mr. Abernathy glared in his direction.

"And now, Mr. Abernathy, we would like to have our little Josie speak a piece for you," and, in an undertone, "she is so beautiful."

Josie's place over, she was called to the guests' knee and given a coin; was conversed with, her curls smoothed and finally she was enthroned on Mr. Abernathy's knee.

"I have little doubt but that she will be our choice—our little ray of happiness. Miss Smithers," said the guest when leaving. "But I am not able to say definitely until Mrs. Abernathy sees her. We shall return on Monday and er—er—I might suggest the freckle-faced boy be eliminated—such behavior might annoy my wife extremely."

Mrs. Abernathy was as large as her husband was small. He jumped when she said "Amos" and responded quickly with "my dear."

"Miss Smithers, may I request that little Josie recite her piece for Mrs. Abernathy—a remarkably bright child, Maria—"

Josie was brought forward and started her sing-song version of "Flowers that Bloom . . . Bloom but to Fade—"

but suddenly clapped her hand to her cheek and emitted a howl. "Something stung me, it did, it did!"

Mr. Abernathy placed her gently on his knee, wiped away her tears and she resumed the story of the flowers that bloomed to fade. Then "pop" and Mr. Abernathy almost leaped from his chair. Miss Smithers was panic-stricken. She searched the faces all about her. Again Josie recited. Mrs. Abernathy waited serenely, her fat hands folded over her stomach.

"Very nice—a pretty child, isn't she? But rather lacking in animation, I should say. May I suggest you call in that red-haired, freckle-faced imp who just shot my husband through that window yonder with a pea-shooter? I'd like to talk to him."

Tommie was brought in, dirty, ragged, his shoes muddy from his hurried flight over freshly plowed gardens, the pea-shooter protruding from his rear pocket.

Tommie was very much frightened. He stood before Miss Smithers, head hanging, swallowing frequently. Silence reigned for a moment. Then Mrs. Abernathy spoke:

"Hello, there. Straight shot, aren't you? Did it take much practice?" Tommie looked up and grinned. "Not much—yes'm, a lot—" he stammered. "I'm prakthin' to go into the thirteenth—"

"Good! That's what I always wanted to do. Come over and sit down with me, Tommie. I think we are going to be good friends—"

Yank. She cried and he dodged behind Mrs. Abernathy's huge bulk as Miss Smithers bore down upon him. "I do not often hold out against you, Maria, my dear—I never have—but in this particular case I choose sweet little Josie as the ray of sunshine to brighten the home of our age. Josephine Maria Abernathy—our little daughter—"

Mrs. Abernathy likewise rose to her feet. "And I choose Tommie—as the well, I can hardly say ray of sunshine," and chuckled behind her fat bediamond hand. "I'll say bolt of lightning or crash of thunder that is always needed to offset too much sunshine. Thomas Amos Abernathy, our little son—"

At seven o'clock the Abernathy limousine rolled away from the portals of the Dunkirk orphan asylum. Tommie, clean faced, was on the front seat with the chauffeur. Josie was clasped in the arms of her foster father. Mrs. Abernathy reached over and patted Tommie maternally. "You shot straight, son—right into my heart."

REGISTERED CALF TO BE GIVEN AT HOLSTEIN FIELD DAY

At the annual field day of the Montgomery County Holstein Club to be held at the Wm. H. Landis farm, East Greenville, next Saturday, a pure bred Holstein calf will be offered as a prize in one of the judging contests. The bull calf will be given to the farmer making the best placing in judging a class of Holstein cows. The calf is offered by Wm. H. Landis, president of the Holstein club. All boys and girls under 18 years of age will be given an opportunity to win cash prizes offered by the Club for the best scores in judging a class of four Holstein females. $15 will be given in the junior contest. The judging work will start at 10.30 a. m. and be under the supervision of Professor A. A. Borland, head of the Dairy Extension Department, State College. The program for the afternoon consists of several addresses including Charles S. Adams, County Agent of Berks county, and Professor Borland of State College. The officers of the county Holstein Club extend a cordial invitation to every one interested in dairy cattle. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Wm. H. Landis, president; Harold Allebach, Secretary-Treasurer; Harvey Murphy and C. E. Longacre, vice president of the Club.

CARELESSNESS CAUSE OF MANY FARM FIRES

This is Fire Prevention Week throughout the nation. Organizations in city and country as well as individuals are co-operating in the effort to bring to everybody's attention the matter of precaution against fires.

"The annual farm fire loss is all the more deplorable," says County Agent R. G. Waltz, "when it is realized that such waste is essentially needless and could be prevented to a large extent by the elimination of carelessness and the adoption of effective and recommended equipment and methods."

In the order of their importance, the principal causes of farm fires are said to be lightning, defective chimneys and flues, careless use of matches and smoking, combustible roofs, spontaneous combustion, careless use and storage of gasoline and kerosene and faulty wiring installations and improper use of electrical appliances.

Another serious cause of farm fires is the carelessly guarded brush fire. Brush burning is a necessary and sound practice, and regard for the time and place will eliminate danger of loss. Little creeping flames from carelessly built brush and rubbish fires each year eat up millions of dollars' worth of timber and homes and even destroy human lives.

Brush burning can be done safely and efficiently by choosing a time when the fire will not spread rapidly, by burning at an adequate distance from buildings, woodlands and other inflammable property, and by being certain that the fire is properly extinguished before leaving it.

FRIGHTFUL SACRIFICE OF LIFE ON HIGHWAYS

"Pennsylvania wants no more tragic week-ends such as the one ending September 30," says the Keystone Automobile Club, in pointing out that twenty persons—eleven men, five women and four children—were killed in motor crashes while scores of others were injured, some of them perhaps fatally.

"This record," says the Club statement, "the most sanguinary in years, is so appalling that we feel it our duty to call upon motorists in the name of humanity to act in concert to stop this slaughter on the highways."

"Nine of those who met death were killed by trains at railway grade crossings. Four were killed when their cars skidded on the wet roadway. The others were crushed by cars while walking on the highways."

"This toll over a single week-end calls for drastic remedy. The man at the wheel of a motor car holds, relatively speaking, as important a post as the engineer of a passenger train. If he is irresponsible or incapable of proper operation, he is a menace to himself and every other user of the highway."

"Railroad grade crossings will continue to kill motorists so long as motorists continue to drive on to tracks in the face of onrushing trains. It will be many years before the last of the dangerous grade crossings are eliminated, and in the meantime the motorist who values his life and the lives of those who accompany him will do well to observe the cautionary signal of 'Stop, Look and Listen.'"

"Skidding accidents sometimes are unavoidable, but a great many can be avoided by careful, or competent operation. If motorists continue to drive at high speed over wet roads, they will have only themselves to blame, if, in trying to stop quickly, they find their machines out of control."

"We have no disposition to fix blame on the poor unfortunates whose names helped swell the obituary columns over the week-end, but we feel it our duty to point out to our fellow-motorists that only a kindly fate can save them if they fail to observe the elemental rules of safe driving."

"Unmarried men commit most of our crimes." But are not told about them so often.

BIRD FARM DESIGNATED FOR MONTGOMERY COUNTY

Montgomery county has been designated as the location of one of two "bird farms" which the State Game Commission will establish as a means of assuring a great supply of game birds in the future. Through the efforts of Adolph Muller, of Norristown, a member of the Game Commission, this county was chosen, together with Lawrence county. The meeting of the Commission was held at Harrisburg.

At present, the state has about thirty refuge keepers, who have places to hatch birds. But this arrangement is not sufficient to furnish a supply. The bird farm idea is new, but game men are enthusiastic over its possibilities. The location of a bird farm in this county, comprising about 100 acres has not been decided, but the Perkiomen valley is rightly considered to be an ideal section.

MEETING OF FARMERS' BOARD AT TRAPPE

At a meeting of the executive board of the Agricultural Extension Association, at Keystone Grange hall, Trappe, Monday evening, C. A. Wismer presiding, a committee presented a financial report on the two days' Farmers' picnic at Schwenksville, and progress was reported on the farm products show to be held with the Kiwanis business show, week of November 12. A summary report of the poultry tour was presented. R. G. Waltz, County Agent, reported on a number of projects developed lately. He informed the members of the board that 80 farmers had treated wheat for smut at the agricultural trains that stopped at Schwenksville and Ambler. Nearly 3000 bushels were cleaned and treated at the two stops. The County Agent reported the Holstein Field Day arranged by the county club to be held at the William H. Landis farm, East Greenville, Saturday, October 13. Other projects relative to dairying, calf club meetings and tuberculosis eradication were outlined by the County Agent.

PADDED SALARY REVEALED BECAUSE OF ACCIDENT

Struck by an automobile in Collegeville on Saturday, September 15, while on a weekend fishing trip with his son along the Perkiomen creek, and confined with injuries for two weeks in the Pottstown Hospital, resulted in the disclosure of the padding of the payrolls of the city highway department of Reading by Clarence M. Stocker, 57, of North Second street, Reading, according to officials of the city.

Stocker, a Reading highway department foreman, was in the Pottstown Hospital for several weeks. While there a city pay day occurred and "Kramer" and "Weidner" could not be found to collect their checks, no one in the highway department knew persons by those names. Stocker has confessed his guilt to the Mayor of Reading, and will be arrested.

CONSHOHOCKEN COUNCILMEN SUMMONED BY COURT

The burgess and members of the Town Council of Conshohocken have been summoned to appear in court at Norristown, Friday, to answer a charge of contempt. In 1924 the late Judge Miller issued a decree directing the burgess and councilmen of Conshohocken to open Eleventh avenue from Maple street to the west borough line, according to the town's plan. No one having been named by Council to comply with the decree of court it is contended that Conshohocken officials are in contempt of court.

DOG KILLED 98 CHICKENS

Destruction conservatively estimated at $250 in the poultry flock of Wilmer Rosenberg, a farmer living on the Line Lexington pike, below Hilltown village, in Hilltown township, Bucks county, is attributed to a dog, presumably a stray animal, on a blood rampage. A shocking sight confronted them when Rosenberg and members of his family returned, Friday afternoon, from what had been a very enjoyable visit to the Doylestown, Pa., dog and bird drying chickens, the prize fowls of Rosenberg's flock, to the number of 125 were scattered all over the farmyard and poultry run. Some ninety-eight birds had been killed outright. Twenty-seven others, minus wings or legs or otherwise maltreated, were in such a condition that they died or were killed to put them out of misery.
