THE 1916 RUBY SOON TO APPEAR

"College Gem" to be Ready for Distribution Inside of Two Weeks

Word has been received from the Champlin Press, Columbus, O., that the 1916 Ruby, the product of the Junior Class of Ursinus, will be in the hands of the Business Managers in the course of the next two weeks.

The successful completion of this publication has been the chief task of the editors during the present school year, and they are reasonably certain that the volume which is shortly to appear will compare favorably with those of past years, and will in some respects eclipse the efforts of former staffs. The Ruby will be exceedingly attractive. In addition to a beautiful cover design, the work of H. B. N. Pritchard, the drawings and sketches of Messrs. Adams and Pritchard, and Miss Care, are far above the ordinary. The book will be especially profuse with drawings, all of which will tend to add humor and variety to the work.

What has been said regarding the artistic side of the book applies also in the matter of cuts. A new arrangement of the professors of the college has been deemed advisable and the group pictures, in every instance, evince the excellent work of a careful photographer.

The Miscellaneous Department of the Ruby has also come in for its due share of consideration, and the various poems and other witty features will please both alumni and students alike. Lest a misunderstanding exist, it might be well to point out the fact that the Ruby is not a class book, but portrays the life and doings of every organization of the college. Its pages are not replete with unexplained jokes, as is often supposed, but are indicative of the activities of every student at Ursinus.

The price of the Ruby, as in past years, will be $1.75. Alumni and friends desiring books should send their order as soon as possible to Earl R. Yeatts, the Business Manager of the Ruby, in order that copies may be reserved upon the appearance of the edition.

The editorial end of the Ruby was taken care of by LeRoy F. Derr. His

VARSITY BOWS TO THREE STRONG TEAMS

Victors are Villanova, Gallaudet and Catholic University

Ursinus College suffered the first of the three defeats, administered to her during the past week, at the hands of the strong Villanova team in a loosely played game on Patterson field on Wednesday afternoon by a score of 11 to 4. In the sixth the score was tie and apparently the contest was to be close to the finish, but Ziegler was unable to stop the visitors, who continued to send their men across the rubber. Ursinus was unable to tally another score.

In the second game of the week Ursinus went down to defeat to Gallaudet, at Washington, on Friday afternoon by the close score of 1 to 0. Rasmussen, Gallaudet's big mainstay in the box, was invincible, allowing Ursinus only three scattered hits. Peterson, who pitched his first game for Ursinus, also did great work. It was a brilliant contest throughout in all stages of the game, and required less than an hour and one-half to play it. The features of the game were the fielding of Adams and Diemer, and Stugart's phenominal catch.

On Saturday the team met the strong Catholic University team of Washington, D. C. The game was a one-sided contest ending in favor of Catholic University by the score of 8 to 2. Stugart, Adams and Diemer excelled for Ursinus, while Lynch starred for the opponents by his sensational catch of Mitterling's slashing drive to left field which looked like a home run. Scores:

JOHN M. VANDERSLICE

Address delivered at the funeral of Mr. Vanderslice by President Omwake.

The passing from this world's life of one whose death closes a long and busy career presents an occasion for fitting discourse on many themes. It would not be out of place to speak here of the struggle of youth for success in life, of manhood with its many-sided interests, or of the approach of death. It would not be inappropriate to speak of patriotic devotion to one's country, of military glory, of bravery on the field of battle. One might speak of citizenship, of the great learned profession of the law, of the love of nature, of country life, of domestic fealty, of hospitality, of devotion to family and friends.

In accepting an invitation to speak on this occasion, I take it as my privilege that I should confine my remarks, which must be brief, to still another aspect of the life of Colonel Vanderslice—his interest in education. Twelve years ago he accepted a place on the Board of Directors of Ursinus College. Three years later I became a member of this Board myself; as such, and later as an executive officer in the institution, my association with him enabled me to observe something of the trend of his nature, his characteristics and his interests in life as exemplified in his activity as a college director.

In the first place he was prompt and regular in meeting appointments. Until two years ago when he was excused from its exacting duties on account of impaired health, he was a member of our Executive Committee, a body which meets regularly every month in the year. Certainly, amid his varied activities, it was not always convenient to attend these meetings and yet he was always present and at the hour appointed. He did not permit other interests, physical indisposition or inclement weather to interfere with the keeping of appointments on account of college business.

Secondly, I should point out as a characteristic trait, that he was loyal to the college and to those entrusted with the administration of its affairs. This does not mean that he was merely acquiescent. He was a man of wide experience, of opinion and judgment. He freely offered his views and could well state and maintain his position. Whether his ideas were finally accepted or not, like the soldier that he was, he marched in rank and file with his fellows and faithfully followed the superior officer.

Thirdly, it should be noted that his interest in the college was personal. His mind did not concern itself so much with matters of policy, but rather with persons—his concern was for this or that officer or professor or student. He did not discuss general conditions but particular situations. This peculiar qualification won for him a place also on the Committee on Government and Instruction, and here he rendered valuable service to the institution. He took not unwarranted pride in his ability to judge the traits and characteristics of individuals. Thus, he entered with enthusiastic interest into the task which occasionally presented itself of considering the qualifications of applicants for positions. He could read character with success. He always followed with keen interest and sympathy the success of one thus chosen to serve in the faculty or in any office in the college. While he was critical he was never censorious and always sought the best interests of the college. In line with this trait was his interest in the students. I found that he sometimes knew more about them personally than did others who were in position to know them much more intimately. He was quick to perceive evidences of real scholarship and every instance of talent in a student which came to his notice fixed his interest permanently in that student. The last conversation I had with him was started by an inquiry on his part about a student whose essay, published in the college paper, had favorably impressed him.

We could speak in this way at greater length. Enough has been said to indicate the breadth and versatility of the man, his intensely human interest, his sympathetic nature, his love for the true, the beautiful and the good. We shall miss him in our councils, but we shall cherish fond memories of him in our hearts.

Section 2—The two Assistant Managers from the Sophomore class shall be elected by the 'Varsity squad from the three members of that class who served as Assistant Managers during the season.

Section 3—The Manager shall be chosen from the two Assistant Managers, who are at that time members of the Junior class, by the "U" men of the season. The defeated candidate shall act as Manager of the second team as heretofore stated.

Spring is at hand, and with it comes the inherent desire to spend much time in communion with nature. This tendency is given expression in various ways, but especially are we prone to take recourse to some form of athletic activity in an effort to give vent to our pent-up energies.

Baseball has long existed and does still exist as an established sport here at Ursinus. However, a comparatively small percentage of the students have the ability to engage in this form of exercise, and as a result the tennis courts command the attention of that majority whose athletic proclivities do not permit their entrance into the realms of baseball.

This latter number has been increasing each year, but, contrary to the law of supply and demand, the available courts have become fewer in number and their condition poorer each year. Little or nothing was done to improve the courts, and consequently they disintegrated to such a degree as to resemble a cow pasture rather than tennis courts. Under these conditions it was impossible to increase the membership of the Tennis Association, and hence the funds to give the courts a more attractive appearance were not forthcoming.

With the advent of warm weather, however, a movement was started to place the courts in such a condition that they might again furnish a source of enjoyment and development to the many students whose inclinations are in this direction. The Athletic Committee and President Omwake were appealed to, and, after careful consideration, they generously agreed to aid the Tennis Association in its purpose. Several men were at once engaged to work on the courts, and already one of the courts is in playing condition. Two additional courts are fast nearing completion, and then our playing facilities will be beyond reproach.

To meet the expenses incident to the carrying out of these improvements the exchequer of the Tennis Association must assume a more pretentious appearance, and hence we appeal to every loyal son of Ursinus to lend a hand in the cause. The dues of the Association are within the reach of everyone, and hereafter no person, whose dues are unpaid, will be permitted to play on the courts. No longer is there the excuse that sufficient equipment is not provided, and instead of "knocking" the project at every opportunity, as has been the case in some instances, let us put our hand "to the roller" and the future success of the enterprise will then be assured.

Y. M. C. A.

"Reality of Christ." This was the subject that commanded the attention of the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday evening. Yeatts, '16, was the leader. His remarks were based upon two sermons delivered by John R. Mott at Eaglesmere, Pa.

"Both the church and world are impatient with unreality. Both demand something that can be applied. Christ is unreal to most of us. We have not gotten close enough to him. At this point the question arises, 'How does He become real to us?' First, He becomes real by studying His life. This will awaken an interest within us, if it is done in a receptive and open-hearted state of mind. Secondly, we must live according to his example. Thirdly, we must preserve an uncompromising attitude toward sin. Sin separates us from God. Sin is continually on our trail, it shows us up. Fourthly, we should cultivate a habit of having Christ with us at all times. He will help us in our school work as well as in our church work. Fifthly, we should keep our minds fixed upon God in public prayer.

Associate different times and places with Christ. Let certain things remind you of Christ, especially in time of temptation. Sixthly, use yourself in service for others. Finally, form resolutions to keep Christ real. Remember He is by your side. Call upon the Master. He can not aid you unless you are willing for him to help you."

Y. W. C. A.

The value of loyalty was brought out most sensibly and practically by Miss Miller, in the meeting on Tuesday evening. Briefly she said: "Loyalty always arouses admiration in us. But the girl who is disloyal to her college and her friends arouses our distrust. We are suspicious of one who speaks slightly of his own home or allows in his presence unkind gossip about friends.

"Loyalty is the willing and practical devotion of a person to a cause. It is never mere emotion but involves an ideal, a steady purpose to which all our actions are directed. The life of Paul is a typical illustration. When he gave himself up to the Great Leader all his energies were devoted absolutely to the cause of Christ.

"Are we loyal to this cause? Would we be willing to have Christianity judged by our lives? All of us have probably enjoyed friendships which stimulated our achievement and for which we would have cheerfully made great sacrifices. In the same way a loyal friendship to Jesus Christ will broaden, unify and sweeten our lives, and unmeasurably more than any earthly friendship. Many a student, in college, studies that he may win position and fame. But if he is Christ-centered he will spend his time preparing to take better part in the great enterprise of furthering the kingdom of God."

Zwinglian Society

The debate on Friday evening was one of the best of the year. It marked the last of the inter-class debates. The question under discussion was: Resolved, "That State Constabulary Should be Established Throughout the United States." The Seniors were represented by Messrs. Deininger, Minich and Boyer, who upheld the affirmative side of the question; the Sophomores, Messrs. Lehman, Hain and Grove, argued negatively. The debate was spirited throughout and commanded the attention of the audience at all times. The judges, Dr. Smith, Prof. Yost and Mr. Davidheiser, after due deliberation, gave the decision to the Sophomores. The other numbers on the program were as follows: Flute Solo, Mr. Harrity; Zwinglian Review, Mr. Bahner; Critic's Report, Mr. M. W. Yost.

The winners of the Sophomore Essay Contest were announced by Mr. Kerschner. The first prize, ten dollars, was awarded to J. Seth Grove on "Nature's University." Leo I. Hain captured the second prize of five dollars on "The German War Machine." The essay on "Public Playgrounds," by Eva M. Sandt received honorable mention. Miss Mary H. Stoner, '05, head of English Department, Pottstown High School, was the judge.

Schaff Society

A very spirited debate occurred on Friday evening between the Sophomores and Freshmen. The question was: Resolved, "That Foreign Immigration Into the United States Should be Restricted by Means of the Educational Test." The affirmative side was well debated by the Freshmen, Mr. G. Dietz, Miss Slinghoff and P. Dietz. The Sophomores, represented by Mr. Kehm, Miss Reifsnieder and Mr. Koons, supported the negative side. The judges decided unanimously in favor of the affirmative. Under general debate Messrs. Spannuth, P. Dietz and Koons spoke. The house decided in favor of the negative on the merits of the question. The musical numbers of the evening were much enjoyed. Miss Rosen played a piano solo in a very pleasing manner. The violin solo by Mr. Lape was much enjoyed. Miss Hyde accompanied by Mr. Lape gave a very beautiful musical recitation. The Schaff Gazette ended the program.

In three weeks the debate between the Freshmen and the Juniors will take place. This debate promises to be a very interesting one,
