GIVING YOUTH A "BREAK"

For the next few weeks thousands of boys all over the land will be engaged in a friendly, yet flerce, competition. The winner will not only guide a home-made soap box auto over a finish line, but will also be winning himself a scholarship in some university. The gesture of the company sponsoring such an event is one to stimulate every boy and to make the older folks sorry that they lived their youth in an age not as productive in opportunity as this one.

The soap-box derby is a worth-while affair. It stimulates the friendly competition between boys and has as an end, a college education. Though it may be borne of a desire for advertising we point with pride to a nation so vitally interested in its youth as to turn out by the hundreds of thousands to see American youth on parade.

"A STITCH IN TIME . . . . "

All over Pennsylvania and especially in this section there is flowering a worthwhile idea in the new hospitalization plan. This plan has been tried and tested in other sections of the land but is just gaining a foothold among local people.

The whole idea boils down to the idea of budgeting for sickness before that unhappy circumstance arises. For years the medical profession has been wondering why people could not budget this item just as they do clothing, food or some emergency. With this plan comes the solution to their problem. And since the expense must be met by the public in general it is their problem, too, which is being solved in such a fine manner.

The budget idea calls for different rates, depending on the size and ages of the family, paid before the need for a hospital reaches us. Less than two dollars a month pays for room and attention in a first class hospital in case of accident or sickness. The budget plan of hospitalization has plenty of merit. Enough, in fact, that whereever it springs up it seems to sell itself to the public.

Rattles Used by Adults

as Well as the Babies

Almost 5,000 years ago, babies in the old city of Kish in Mesopotamia were kept happy with rattles, according to Richard A. Martin, archeologist, of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. Yet, tem of contour strip farming to control soil erosion. Mr. Schell has control soil erosion. Mr. Schell has control soil erosion. adults then by children in most lands explored by science.

Soldiers in ancient China were stirred by music of bronze rattles in military orchestras. African tribes devised many kinds of rattles for use in magical rites. Egyptians had a kind of rattle called a sistrum, made of a staff with metal nounces that farmers interested in rings dangling at the end, and used in solemn religious ceremonies, soil erosion are invited to attend American Indians used rattles in religion and magic.

Modern Europe and America stand out, as exceptions in using rattles mainly for amusing babies. Rattles unearthed at Kish include some shaped like goats and hedgehogs, to catch the babies' eyes, as well as amusing them with the jingle of pebbles inside the hollow toys.

The Egyptian Labyrinth

There are several labyrinths spoken of in ancient history. The one ken of in ancient history. The one Drivers Thru This Section. en wonders of the world-indeed the only one whose existence is well authenticated—is the labyrinth of Egypt. This was situated at Arsinoe, near Lake Moeris, and was visited and described by Herodotus. It consisted of 3,000 chambers, half of them below ground, the subterranean apartments being used, it is supposed, for burial places. The chambers were connected with vaulted passages and were built of polished stone. Authors do not agree as to the name of the king under whom this remarkable work was constructed, and it is probable that it was not done in a single reign. This labyrinth was extant in the time of Pliny, 78 A. D., and ruins at the modern village of Howara, in Fayum, have been identified with those of this labyrinth.

Early Use of Sundials

Sundials are used as ornaments in suburban and country gardens, but in the days of the early Egyptians sundials were used as means of telling time. The Greeks' knowledge of geometry led them to invent elaborate dials, and Ptolemy treated of the construction of such instruments. After the fall of the classic civilization, sundials continued to be made by the Arabs. Much experimentation was done in the Seventeenth century, but in the Eighteenth century clocks and watches began to replace this device.

The Biggest Elephant The biggest elephant on record was an African elephant 12 feet 2 inches high. It weighed about seven or eight tons. Few mammoths were much bigger than that, but the very biggest of all the elephant's prehistoric cousins measured a little over sixteen feet at the shoulder. This is proved by the fossil remains of an elephant-like creature discovered in India and known as the Narbada elephant. As far as is known it was the biggest beast that ever wore a trunk.

Offers Theory on Cud-Chewing An Iowa professor has another theory concerning the cud-chewing cow. He believes it to be a holdover from the dark ages when cows were preyed upon by wild animals. They lived on great plains and had to subsist on plants difficult to digest. They therefore retired to a safe place and digested their foods at their leisure.

STATE PLANS BETTER PROGRAM FOR FARMERS

Secretary J. H. French Heads New Commission for Consolidation of Farm Activities

Plans for the development of a more comprehensive farming program in Pennsylvania were started y State Agriculture Secretary J Hansell French last week. French is the chairman of the newly formed State Agricultural Planning commission.

He was elected head of the new ommission at a meeting of Federand State agricultural leaders at Harrisburg. The new farm administrative body is the first of many expected to be established throughout the United States, it was said.

The commission will serve as an advisory council to develop Pennsylvania's agricultural resources. will be composed of state agricultural leaders and farmers in

Community to "Pool" Its Resources

If a bank merely loaned or invested the capital contributed by its stockholders it would be only about 10% useful to its community.

A much larger circulating fund is necessary for loans and to carry on the other business of the community. So banks are organized to gather into one convenient place the small savings of people who have more money than they need immediatelyand the bank's capital is pledged for their
