Work will be done under the direction of the Collegeville-Trappe Joint School Board, which is local sponsor of the project. Its contribution will be in addition to the amount of the WPA allotment.

Operations authorized include: grading, spreading topsoil, seeding, constructing backstops, tennis courts, drainage facilities, football and hockey field, and bleachers; laying masonry, installing water and drain lines; ditching, dismantling, moving and reassembling a tool house, and related work.

The project is limited to operation on publicly-owned property and can get under way as soon as funds are released by the state WPA administrator.

POSTMASTER TO INSPECT ALL RURAL MAIL BOXES
Annual inspection of mail boxes along Collegeville rural delivery route No. 1 will be conducted by Postmaster Clarence W. Scheuren next week, following the yearly custom of the postal department.

Scheuren said he would accompany Harry Rambo, carrier on the route, to determine which mail boxes were not meeting Federal regulations.

All boxes Scheuren explained must be 42 to 48 inches above the ground and must be on the right hand side of the road in relation to the direction traveled by the carrier.

Although a person's home may be on the opposite side of the road, he must move the box or face non-delivery of mail, the postmaster warned. The regulation was established to eliminate the necessity of the carrier zig-zagging across a highway.

From May 1 to 15 R. D. carriers must count money orders received, value of stamps on mail collected, value of stamps and paper sold, etc., to give the Post Office Department an idea of business transacted on their routes. Description, mileage and map of the route must be checked by the postmaster.

Ursinus Curtain Club to Present "Lightnin' in Gym, May 9-10

The Curtain Club of Ursinus College, will present the play, "Lightnin'" by Frank Bacon and Winchell Smith as its annual spring production on Friday and Saturday, May 9 and 10, in the Thompson-Gay Gymnasium. Mr. and Mrs. Reginald S. Sibbald directing, curtain at 8:30 p. m.

It so happens that much of the play is centered around divorce proceedings which will take place right before your very eyes. However, that is not the entire plot of the production. There are many more angles which will have to be dealt with behind the footlights on those two particular nights. For example, there is the problem of keeping Lightnin' Bill Jones sober for any length of time. Then there is the problem of outwitting a shyster lawyer and his real estate agent friend. And, of course, there is the love angle,—there always is a love angle. So you see, plenty of action looms ahead.

And in this cast are a number of seniors giving their swan-song performance. Among this number are John Rauhauser, Lightnin' Bill Jones; Helen Smith, Mrs. Jones; John Musser, Judge Townsend; Paul Wise, Raymond Thomas; Franklin Morris, Peters; Muriel Howarth, Mrs. Harper; Mary Alice Lord, Mrs. Moore; Roy Snyder, Oscar; and Douglas Davis, Everett Hammond.

Collegeville Firemen Postpone Building Plan

Committee Recommends That Action be Defered on New Hall "Until After the War"

Collegeville Fire Company at its regular May session last Thursday evening heard a report from the special building committee which has been for several years pondering ways and means and plans for building a proposed new Fire Hall for Collegeville.

Alec Clawson, chrm., reporting for the building committee, after consulting with the trustees, recommended that due to the times, present rise of prices, scarcity of skilled labor and decline of Federal Government aid for public buildings, the committee felt that plans for building a new fire hall for which the company would have to go heavily into debt should be postponed "until after the war" when all indications point to a considerable drop over present building prices and possible resumption of Federal government building aid.

The committee also recommended immediate attention be given to necessary repairs of the present fire hall; but that no major alterations should be attempted—with (Continued on page 4)

RAMBLING AT RANDOM
BY JAY HOWARD

Now that we are in the war we must pull together for victory.

The tent caterpillars are on the old camp grounds—and how!

Frost last week nipped some of the early tomatoes and beans.

Hard luck seems to be tagging plumber John Zahnd unusually hard. First appendicitis and now a broken leg plus other sickness in the family and his foreman laid up with the gripe—and right when he is so busy, too.

We think everyone who stops and considers the situation will agree that Collegeville Fire Company is acting wisely by deferring an extensive building program "Until After the War" when times again will become settled and normal—and our dollars will go further.

Congratulations to Carl "Pete" Dambly on his election as chief of the Skippack Fire Company at the annual reorganization last week. Dambly replaces the veteran Norman Moyer who "chiefed" Skippack for many years. Pete also happens to be a member of the Collegeville company and since he is so well acquainted here we know that the same cooperation and friendly spirit existing between Collegeville and Skippack, heretofore, will be continued.

Mother's Day this Sunday following close upon Boys' and Girls' week, reminds us of the many fine families in this community. It is probably unfair to single out any particular family; but we can't help mentioning our number one professional family—that of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sommers. They have five children and all are professional. There is Dr. Elmo Sommers, First Lieutenant U. S. (Continued on page 4)

Mother's Day

Nearly everybody in the United States will join in the celebration of Mother's Day, which occurs on the second Sunday of May.

We hope that everyone will reflect upon the debt they owe, as individuals, to their mothers and pay tribute to the loving service that had much to do with making them human beings.

In observance of the special day there is no use to become foolish. Let us recognize that there is no miracle that lightens the load of care or the burden of worry that weighs down the average mother.

To be good mothers they have to give up many of the pleasures that life offers and their unselfishness is consequently more notable.

We hope that all living mothers, for one day, at least, will be happy in the thought that their children honor and love them and they will be remembered, as they should, by their scattered family group.

For mothers who have passed on, there is nothing that we can do, but their sons and daughters should not fail to recall their memories and pay tribute to their goodness.

Industry Will Surprise Hitler

One of these fine mornings the people of the United States will begin to appreciate the magnificent progress that has been made in the work of producing the materials that we need for our defense.

Last week, for example, the Baldwin Locomotive Works completed the first of a number of 25-ton tanks nine months ahead of schedule. Duplicates are rolling off the assembly-lines on a mass production basis in just about three months after the first tank was begun.

On the same day the Chrysler Corporation produced its pilot model of a great fleet of 25-ton tanks. Less than four months ago the mobile fort was just a "large bundle of blueprints", and last Summer the land on which the huge plant stands was a muddy Michigan cornfield.

By mid-Summer the big tanks are expected to come forth at the rate of five every eight-hour shift. Another illustration of what is going on in defense production involves the world's greatest powder plant, which began operation 23 days ahead of schedule.

Numerous other instances have been revealed in the past few months, telling of great progress that has been made in construction of the necessary industrial plants to insure the nation's safety. The Federal government has committed itself to an investment of about $3,000,000,000 in connection with the construction of plants, about half of the amount having been expended.

From these new plants, from those that existed before and from those being constructed by private capital, will flow an amazing volume of materials, supplies and equipment for the defense of democracy. The dictators, we imagine, will be surprised.

SOCIAL SECURITY AND THE NEW JOB

Many workers are now changing jobs or taking their first jobs as a result of the national defense program. Many of these jobs are covered by old-age and survivors insurance under the Social Security Act. Mr. H. C. Hoover, recently appointed manager of the Norristown, Pa. Social Security Board office in the Penn-Trust Bldg., Main and Swede Streets, has prepared a series of eight brief articles for THE INDEPENDENT explaining the steps each worker should now take in connection with his social security account to avoid delays or difficulties when he or his family are ready to collect insurance benefits.

Any worker who does not have a social security account number card can obtain one at the Social Security Board office. This is the sixth article in the series.

Thirty-two Schools Send Teams to Ursinus Meet

After the dust and shouting died away, it was revealed that Upper Darby had won in the Class A division with a total of 49 1/2 points, 40 in the relays and 9 1/2 in the field events. Lower Merion was second with 47 1/2, while Norristown was a close third with 47 points. In the Class B competition there was a tie for first place between Media and Swarthmore, each amassing 32 3/5 points. Following these leaders were Eddystone with 18 and a tie between Bristol and Ridley Park each with 15 1/2 points. C-T athletes entered in the meet failed to place in the stiff competition.

State Raises Minimum Pay of Fourth Class School Teachers

A bill raising the minimum salaries of school teachers of all fourth class school districts in the State has been passed by the House and is virtually assured of passage in the Senate, according to word from the Pennsylvania Legislature now in session at Harrisburg.

The bill raises salaries of elementary teachers from $800 to $1000 and high school instructors from $1170 to $1200, plus two annual $50 increments.

There are 778 fourth class teachers in Montgomery county which includes all districts except Norristown, Pottstown, Lower Merion, Abington, Bridgeport, Cheltenham, Conshohocken, Lansdale, Springfield, Upper Merion.

The new bill will not effect Collegeville-Trappe school district or any other boroughs in the county since they already are paying above the proposed new minimum. However, the bill will effect several of the rural districts in this neighborhood.

SUPERIOR TUBE SPLITS EVEN WITH BARREN HILL

The Superior Tube nine opened the Montco League season over the weekend by splitting two with Barren Hill.

Playing before a small opening day crowd on Saturday afternoon on the home diamond, adjacent to the company's plant here, the Tubers rallied in the ninth to win a 10-9 decision from the Hillers. Cy Donahue hurled for the Tubers and chalked up 13 strikeouts.

On Sunday, playing at Barren Hill, the Tubers were unable to overcome the early inning lead of the Hillers and were nosed out 11-10 in a heavy hitting affair. Ed Poley was on the mound for Superior.

This coming weekend Superior plays Paragon Bag of Schwenksville, on the Superior diamond Saturday afternoon and at Schwenksville on Sunday.

County to Raze Brendlinger's Store to Aid Traffic Safety

The chief hazard to traffic at Brendlinger's Corner, the intersection of the Swamp Pike and the Pottstown-Layfield Road, in New Hanover township, a two-story brick building which blocks the view of the intersection, has been condemned and will be removed shortly, it was announced by the Montgomery County Commissioners. The intersection, scene of many accidents including several fatalities, was formerly guarded by an overhead traffic light. Last year the light was damaged twice and ordered removed by the State. Since then, "Stop" signs on the Layfield Road have regulated traffic. The County Commissioners, realizing that the real solution of the traffic problem there lay in elimination of the obstructed view caused by the two-story brick house, situated near the curb line on the northwest corner, obtained the cooperation of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways, and the State subsequently condemned the property. The county and state have entered into an agreement whereby the owner of the property, E. Frank Brandt, will be paid $1500 in damages, with the county and the state sharing the cost. The agreement prohibits the owner of the property from erecting any building in the future which will obstruct the view of the intersection from either pike. Brandt plans to build a new ser-

Besides this, part-time service to the church its worship period and organizations must be cheerfully given as a basis for daily acts of Christian life service. COLLEGEVILLE FIREMEN

A new building ultimately in view. The trustees were authorized to invest the present $3000 cash balance of the company in Federal Savings or some other government securities. Chief Smedley reported 13 field fires during the month—the most field fires in any one month in the company's history. Howard B. Keyser, chrm. of the supper committee, presented a detailed and final report of the recent supper. Net profit was $874.54. Cost of the meal was 30 cents per platter. A number of donations were acknowledged including $10 from the Community Club and from various individuals following field fires. Total receipts for the month were $112.98 including final supper receipts. Bills ordered paid totaled $40.60. Four new members were admitted to the roster as follows: Glen Coley, Robert Anderson, Rev. John F. X. O'Neill and Howard Bauman. A letter from Upper Providence Township Supervisors proposing a $50 yearly contract to furnish firemen's service to property holders in the Collegeville area of the township was taken under consideration but definite action deferred.

BOARD EIGHT SENDS FIVE

Previously, men drafted for a year's service were examined by local physicians and then sent to Philadelphia for final examination and immediate induction, which created an embarrassing situation for draftees who left jobs and homes only to return the same day upon rejection at the induction center. The Swamp Pike is a Montgomery county highway and the Layfield Road a State road. The building to be removed has been a landmark in that section for a century. Until about a year ago, it was in the name of the Brendlinger family who conducted a store and post office there for five generations.

Bonnie's Mother

By MARY WILSON (Associated Newspapers.) WNU Service.

SAM DONOVAN was courting Theresa Redmond. There was no doubt about it. The news spread rapidly through Ravensda, a town of 10,000, for Sam and Theresa were both important enough to be of interest, not only to Ravensda but to the neighboring city of Philadelphia. Although many years Theresa's senior Sam was the most eligible widower in Ravensda. Theresa was a charming woman, highly educated, extensively traveled and thoroughly cosmopolitan. Sam and Theresa were deeply in love—that was apparent—yet, somehow, they did not wed. "If you must know," Theresa's somewhat crusty old father had said to an inquisitive neighbor, "Theresa doesn't want to assume the responsibility of mothering five children. And I don't blame her." That, in fact, was the very thing that kept Theresa single. So Ravensda concluded. If Theresa became Mrs. Donovan she automatically became the mother of five youngsters, two boys and three girls, Bonnie, the youngest, being eight, and Nadine, the eldest, 17. Nadine was a beautiful spoiled young creature, who ruled her father, the house, the other children, her schoolmates and her teachers with an imperious sway. Theresa was afraid of Nadine. Well might Sam Donovan love Theresa. She was only ten years older than Sam's oldest daughter, and much of the loveliness of youth had clung to her. She looked scarcely any older than Nadine. "Poor little Nadine. She needs you," Sam pleaded with Theresa. She lacked a mother's care at the most critical period of her life. Thus Sam urged his suit, thinking thereby to strengthen it. "And is that the only reason you seek my hand in marriage, Sam Donovan?" she asked, a sly twinkle in her eye. Sam, realizing how inept his speech had been, hastened to make amends most effectively with a caress and a swift rush of loving words. "Theresa, darling. You know I worship you, aside and apart from the kids and their needs. Only I thought, perhaps, you might come to know them and to love them in time, as I do," Sam hurried on. "I'll give you my word of honor they'll never intrude on you, never make demands on your time, never interfere with your personal life." Again Theresa smiled knowingly. Only Theresa knew the truth. It was not the responsibilities nor the curtailment of her personal freedom that she dreaded. She even courted them, and it was the appeal of those five motherless children that inclined her toward Sam. She dreaded Nadine. The young chit had publicly snubbed her on several occasions and had said ugly things. Not for worlds would Theresa tell Sam the truth. That doting parent had done everything a man could do to spoil his children, but he had no idea of the persecution to which Theresa was being subjected. Determined that they should all become better acquainted, Sam gave an elaborate family dinner. He invited a host of relatives and had in a caterer from Philadelphia to cook and serve the meal. Theresa would have preferred a quiet family dinner. The affair would have gone off very well, except that Nadine chose at the last moment deliberately to absent herself, pleading a previous engagement. Only then, for the first time, did Sam sense the true state of affairs. Throughout the long dinner he evolved in his mind various schemes for dealing effectively with that 17-year-old offspring. On the whole, however, the dinner was a great success. But Theresa's mind was in a turmoil. Apparently it was to be war to the knife as far as Nadine was concerned. Theresa's courage failed her. She felt she just could not face the thought of years of combat ahead. She made up her mind to tell Sam the truth after dinner—that it was better that they should give one another up. Theresa wanted to break the news to Sam in a beautiful spot. It would be a blow, she knew—a blow for both of them. So she asked him to take her out on an inclosed veranda, a charming out-door sort of room. As the two approached the room their attention was attracted by a childish treble voice. It seemed to be repeating a phrase time and again. Theresa and Sam entered quietly. There was eight-year-old Bonnie curled up in a big leather chair. Over and over again she kept saying the word "mother." Suddenly the child looked. Apparently Bonnie was not in the least disconcerted. With all the frankness of childhood she smiled up at them. "I was just practicing so I will know how to say 'mother' when Miss Redmond marries you, Daddy," she explained naively. That was enough for Theresa. She was ready to surrender completely. She no longer even feared Nadine. "Sam, I'll marry you tomorrow," she said to that bewildered individual. Then she furtively wiped a tear from her lovely eyes and went over and took Bonnie in her arms with a perfect motherly gesture.

Next is Lucille, wife of Dr. Robert Miller, Collegeville, registered nurse, graduate of C. H. S. and Lankenau Nurses School. Then comes Virgil Sommers, local funeral director, graduate of C. H. S. and Lankenau Training School for Nurses. There are other fine families and if we had the space we would like to mention them all. While it is Mother's Day we are not going to say that all the credit for our fine families is for the mothers alone—for the fathers, too, have their day, you know. At any rate it takes both a mother and father (lots of work and heart aches) to raise a family, but we will admit that Mother is far more important and influential than Father in the family circle. It is really remarkable what the mothers in this community have done and are doing. The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world. Mr. and Mrs. John Snovel, of Fourth avenue, wish to correct an alleged inference in last week's issue concerning the contraction of the measles by their son Norman, a National Guardsman, in training at Indiantown Gap. The Snovels say that Norman did not visit at his home during the furlough mentioned; but instead had visited at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Keyser of Evansburg. Did you ever see so many new cars on the road, or so many new homes and factories, or such profitable business (war contracts and otherwise) on all sides with everything booming. Contemplate the scene, and memorize it well. The time will come when you will want to refer back to the good old days of 1941. School children in this vicinity who are looking forward to the middle of June for their "last day," can hardly realize that most rural schools closed and "commenced" last week. The following letter follows numerous phone calls which followed a loud-speaker (a-la Orson Wells) episode on the Ursinus campus the other night. Most of us think nothing of these little episodes that are all part of the natural life in a college town; but there happened to be a strong east wind blowing that night which accentuated the affair to the point where it disturbed some of the staid residents of the Sixth Ward. Here's the letter which explains itself. May 2, 1941 To the Townspeople of Collegeville: A few nights ago several members of the College put on an impromptu program over the loud speakers of a visiting cigarette advertiser. Both the advertiser and the students were innocent of any intent to disturb people off the campus. The speakers were set to reach the dormitories on the campus, and the program itself was, I think, clean and wholesome. When the men learned that they were disturbing the community at large, they stopped immediately. All of us have a warm feeling for the people of Collegeville. You have been kind to us and have enabled us to make this place more like our own homes. It is very unfortunate that incidents of this sort occur from time to time to interrupt temporarily our friendly relations. To any of you who were awakened or disturbed by this little episode I extend the sincere apologies of the men's student body of the College. It would please me personally to explain the matter more fully to anyone of you who may care to see me. Respectfully, HARRY L. SHOWALTER, President of the Men's Student Council. Speaking of the Glenwood Association (alumni group of the former Pennsylvania Female College located here) an article in the Ursinus Weekly commenting on the recent reunion of the association, which in 1923 gave a $3,000 scholarship to Ursinus, has the following to say: Near the center of the village of Collegeville, Penna., about two blocks removed from Main Street, there is a small stone tower, circular in shape, about the size of the usual mausoleum, located in the center of a ten-acre grove of beautiful trees. Within this tower there is a marble marker, bearing this inscription: This Building Marks the Site of The First Female College in U. S. A. Founded 1851 by James Warren Sunderland, LL.D.

MABEL CECILIA VANDERLICKE, President of Glenwood Association. This Memorial Erected by Francis J. Clamer and Family 1920. Pennsylvania Female College had its origin in the Montgomery Female Seminary, which opened October 27, 1851 and was jointly founded by Abram Hunsicker and J. W. Sunderland, who had first come to this vicinity in order to teach mathematics and the classics at Freeland Seminary. It is obvious that Mr. Sunderland was taking a most radical step (for Pennsylvania at least) in projecting this institution, since house work and motherhood were conceded to be the sphere of woman's duties in life. A Liberal Education for Women On April 6, 1853, the Pennsylvania State Legislature passed an act to incorporate the Pennsylvania Female College, which conferred upon Montgomery Female Seminary the rights, privileges, and responsibilities of a standard college. The aim of this institution varied little throughout its history—the object was to provide better facilities for the liberal education of women than were to be met within the female seminaries of that day. —From The Ursinus Weekly
